

Science Museum Announces Two Staff Changes

Two major museum appointments were announced today for Cranbrook Institute of Science, by its director Dr. Robert T. Hatt.

Dr. Warren L. Wittry, curator of archeology at Illinois State Museum, is the new assistant director and curator of anthropology. Dr. Wittry will assume his new duties on May 15.

Dr. Torsten Althin, director of Sweden's Museum of Science and Technology, has been named director of the physics project. He will come to the Institute of Science about October 1.

CURRENT PRESIDENT of the Illinois Archeological Survey, Dr. Wittry holds three degrees from the University of Wisconsin. From 1940 to 1959 he was on the staff of the Museum of the Wisconsin Historical Society, the last six years as director of anthropology.

Dr. Wittry's researches recently have been in Wisconsin and the Cahokia site on the Mississippi but he has been involved in the Missouri River Basin Project, the Wisconsin site of Aztalan and several rock shelters and copper sites in the western Great Lakes area.

Dr. Althin is the creator of the Museum of Science and Technology which holds a high place among Stockholm's institutions of world renown.

He is the president of the International Committee for Museums of Science and Technology and has since 1931 been a member of the advisory board of Deutsches Museum in Munich.

Fluoridation Radio Subject

TO THE EDITOR:

My concern as a Birmingham citizen and parent is the lack of factual information readily available to use regarding fluoridation of water.

Since there is so much doubt and confusion in people's minds, I want to urge every Birmingham resident as well as parents in search of the truth on this subject to tune to Radio WJBK (1500 AM or 93.1 FM) this Sunday, May 6, at 11:30 a.m.

The speaker, a well known allergy specialist, will answer Bob King's questions on fluoridation.

St. James Aids Leper Colony

The Rev. Kenneth H. Gass, rector of St. James Episcopal Church, and Mrs. Donald G. Howarth, 687 Oakland, Birmingham, stand in front of the bus the parish bought for a leper colony in Okinawa. The bus was purchased from the Leader Dog School for the Blind in Rochester. Bishop Harry S. Kennedy of the Missionary District of Honolulu instilled the idea of the bus when he visited St. James last September.

Proxy Battle Looms Over Control of Co.

Two Birmingham men, one a member of the Board of Education, and a Rochester resident are involved in a proxy battle over control of a northern Michigan brewery.

The men are Malcolm Lovell, 525 Watkins, Birmingham, who will retire from the board this spring and William E. Francis, 592 Lakeside, Birmingham, and Willis Phassey of Rochester.

THE TRIO ARE attempting wrest control of the brewery from its present management. They call themselves the "Schwealing Bros."

Goodwill Industries Week Proclaimed

Next week has officially been proclaimed a Goodwill Industries Week in Birmingham by Mayor Florence Willett.

Goodwill's Oakland County Industrial Contracts plant, 711 W. 14 Mile, Clawson, will hold a week-long "open house" in honor of the occasion.

The present management charged in a suit filed in Oakland County Circuit Court that the "Committee" sent out letters seeking stockholders' proxies that contained "untruthful allegations."

Front judge William Reor ordered the company's annual meeting adjourned until May 17 to give him time to judge the charges. A hearing of the suit is set for Friday.

Volunteer Groups Unite to Help St. Joe's Hospital

The Auxiliary of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital and the hospital's Blood Group have recently donated a fluorescence microscope to St. Joseph's.

The microscope is used for the early diagnosis of bacterial meningitis, streptococcal pharyngitis and has recently acted as an aid in the early detection of cancer of the stomach.

Mrs. Forest Rorabach, of 2190 Lancaster, Bloomfield Hills, president of the blood group, and Mrs. John Mahoney, president of the auxiliary, headed the drive to purchase the microscope.
