

Behind The Store Fronts

With

With new stores seemingly opening almost every week in and around Birmingham, it appears that we sometimes take the older businesses for granted. Not so. This week we salute the Wakeek Pharmacy, 226 W. Maple, on its completion of twenty-five years of service to area residents.

Twenty-five years ago, Mark Hearn opened the Wakeek Pharmacy, and in 1954 he opened the Prescription Center, 624 W. Woodward in the Reid Building. The high ethical standards he established for his pharmacy back in 1937 are carried on today by Mrs. Mark Hearn, president of the firm, by Earnie Belding, vice-president, and manager of the Wakeek Pharmacy; and by Ray Jensen, vice-president, and also manager of The Prescription Center.

This week's photographic display in the windows of the Birmingham Camera Shop is by Sam Fowler, Seaboard high school senior.

Clifford Ross, Birmingham resident, and custom home builder in the Birmingham-Royal Oak area for the past 15 years, has joined his brother, Ward Ross, in forming the organization of Ross Homes, Inc., at 1941 S. Telegraph, west of Miracle Mile. Ross has been in the home building business for the past 20 years, in areas north of Birmingham.

When Bill Wiener, of the Prep Shop, started planning a Michigan Week window display he settled for what the smart young man about town of about the 1910's era would settle for in the way of clothes. Bill was able to obtain clothes of that period from the Goodwill people of Detroit.

One of the neckties used (wide style), naturally was of particular interest to a local Prep Shop competitor when Bill called Martin Frank to let him know they were using a tie with a Higgins & Frank label of days long past on the young man in the Prep Shop window.

Once in a while we can blame errors on a line of type being left out, which was what happened last week with The Village Travel Service. Items The two young women who are staying on with the new owners were listed as Emily and Jacqueline Levitt, former owners of Village Travel. The correct names, of course, are Emily Prekel and Jacqueline Levitt.
