Eliminate the "GARBAGE CAN GALLOP!"

DISPOSE OF GARBAGE INDOORS... INSIDE A GAS INCINERATOR

The "Garbage Can Gallop" is that dash you take to the garbage can and back when the weather is bad. It's a futile rush though, because nobody can outrun the rain, snow and wind. A Gas Incinerator is the solution. Inside your house a clean, compact Gas Incinerator will consume garbage, papers, even bones... consume them without smoke, odor, or noise. See the new Gas Incinerators, soon!

Barnum Trojans

The first meeting of the Barnum Ski Club is scheduled for today (Nov. 1). The meeting is to be held in the Barnum Gym and a large turnout is expected. The club plans to go on as many skiing holidays as the weather permits. At the meeting, there will be a fashion show of ski wear and accessories, sponsored by the Silverwolf Sporting Goods Store. The items are to be modeled by six students from Barnum, four girls and two boys. At the height of the show, there will be modeled a beautiful seal skin parka, which is valued at over $475. This is truly a beautiful coat, which any girl would be proud to own. The ski club is in its second year, and is under the direction of Mr. McMahon. No skiing experience is necessary for the club. We hope many students will join in this new and exciting club.

On Wednesday, Oct. 24, the Barnum football team played its fifth football game of the season. The game was played at Pierre Field with Hazel Park. After a well-played game, the score stood 20-6, in favor of Hazel Park. It was the fifth defeat in Barnum's so far winless season. The Barnum squad played a good game all around, and always kept the ball moving, but an overdose of intercepted passes and blocked kicks plagued the team. The Barnum touchdown was scored by Bill Luce on a pass from quarterback Chip Beel. All the boys played a good game, with two Hazel Park passes being intercepted by Barnum halfback Dick Lowrie. In the absence of their coach, Mr. Stoll, the team was coached by Mr. Moran.

On Tuesday, Oct. 23, and Thursday, Oct. 25, there were no on dances held during the lunch period. These dances, usually referred to as "record rooms" were held during the lunch periods. The students are admitted for a small fee, and all profits go to augment the treasury of the Barnum Student Council.

On Wednesday, Oct. 24, the students at Barnum received their first report cards of the year. The cards are the computer cards from the new system which is being tested for the Board of Education. Besides the slight changes in the grading system, there will be six separate cards, rather than one, to be used this year. Two copies are made, one for the school, and one for the student. This year it is not necessary that the cards be returned to the school with a parent's signature.

Marian High

Marian high was honored in having Miss Mary Louise Hickey, a mistress of the monologue, Tuesday, Oct. 23, who entertained the student body with her interpretation of George Bernard Shaw's delightful comedy, "Pygmalion". The program added a pleasant hour of lightness to the regular school day. Miss Hickey has traveled extensively through the United States on tour to schools delivering such dramatic programs as "The Diary of Anne Frank", "Dun Town" and "Isabella of Spain," thus adding a little culture to the everyday schedule. Marian students were unanimous in their praise of this artist's performance—particularly her rendering of Eliza Doolittle and the inimitable Henry Higgins.

Representatives of the Advanced Writing class of Marian attended the creative writing workshop at Michigan State University - Oakland, Saturday, Oct. 20. The workshop was cosponsored by the Detroit Women Writers' Club and M.S.U.O. The all-day program, attended by about 100 professional and amateur writers, consisted of a series of three well organized roundtables, covering such subjects as light verse, poetry, the novel, the short story, T.V. and radio scripts, and children's literature. The luncheon lecture was delivered by Marcelline Hemingway, S. A. Ford, sister of Ernest Hemingway. The day ended with panels on marketing and writing opportunities in magazines of this sort. The Marian group went home both informed and inspired, and ready to communicate this inspiration to the rest of their classmates.

The junior class of Marian is preparing for the third annual father-daughter dance in November. The honored master of ceremonies, whose program of square-dancing and audience participation through personalized jokes and adlibbing, always provides an evening of entertainment for both dads and daughters. This year will be no exception. The tradition was begun by the present senior class in it's freshman year. (See MARIAN, 4-B)

Academy of the Sacred Heart

Various activities have engaged the interest of all three schools. The Junior School held a procession of saints Thursday, Oct. 25. Recently the Middle school was given a talk on India by one of the faculty. On an Indian quiz given afterwards, Carolyn Wynn received first prize.

Girls from all parts of the school participated in the annual Arbor

Day on Saturday, Oct. 20. Both they and their fathers cultivated the trees grown in previous years and then enjoyed an outdoor lunch.

On Tuesday, Oct. 23, the whole school welcomed Reverend Mother Fitzgerald and Mother Hamilton from New York. The visitors were honored with a play on the life of Blessed Philippine Duchesne. Later the school was rewarded with a concert on Thursday, Oct. 25.

The senior classes of Bloomfield Hills and Grosse Pointe Convents held a joint retreat on the weekend of Oct. 20 at the Grosse Pointe Convent.

Ten members of the junior and senior classes are now attending an Ecumenical Council workshop at the Noroton Academy in Connecticut. While they are in the East, they will visit classes at Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart in Purchase, New York. They will also compete in inter-vicariate hockey games.

Plans for future weeks include attendance at the informal evening with Robert Frost at the University of Detroit Memorial Building and a championship game with the Grosse Pointe Convent hockey team.
