

Seaholm Publications Recipients of Awards

Seaholm's publications department, under the direction of Thomas C. Hammel, has again been rewarded for its outstanding journalistic achievement. The school yearbook, "The Piper," received for the third consecutive year the three top awards in this area.

The 1962 "Piper" was rated as the best yearbook by the National Scholastic Press Association of Minneapolis, Minn. This award represents a superior rating and was given to only six yearbooks in the classification of schools with 1000-1700 students.

According to the National School Yearbook Association in Nashville, Tenn., the 1962 Seaholm annual deserved an "A-plus" rating. Fewer than 5 per cent of all yearbook contest entries received such an award.

editors are Kathy Thompson, school work; Karen Piehl, school life; and Michele Roberts, seniors and honors.

THE "HIGHLANDER," Seaholm's newspaper, was also awarded. The bi-weekly paper of the 1961-62 school year, edited by Kay Heikkinen, received a second class division rating from the National Scholastic Press Association.

This year's co-editors, Chuck Bethel and Bob Swanson, along with the newspaper staff members, are working on a weekly paper, trying to improve its content, coverage, and rating.

The journalism department at Seaholm is also responsible for two other publications. It provides programs for Seaholm's athletic events, including football and basketball and swimming for the first time. "The Maple Cairn," the school's literary magazine, co-sponsored with "Scribblers," is completed in the spring of each year.

Derby Dragons

The Derby Dragons ended their football season on Nov. 5 with a 49 to 17 victory over Dondoro.

Under the leadership of Coach Hoeh, the Dragons ended the season with an impressive final record of 4 and 2. The Dragons were able to defeat Cranbrook, Barnum, Groves, and Dondoro. Only Norup and Anderson beat them.

Twenty-five regular members and 10 alternates were chosen from about 75 people to form Derby's Camp and Trip club. On Nov. 3 and 4, thirty members went on their first trip. They went to Thunderbird Sports Camp, which is located near Luther, Mich. Two of the activities were a hike and an old time movie.

The Derby Wireless Association, under the direction of Mr. Rogers and Mr. Jens, seems to be one of the most outstanding clubs at Derby. They have a club license, WABBB, so they can send and receive signals. They operate both a transmitter and a receiver, and antenna will be installed on the roof in the near future. Using one of the science rooms as a base, the club contacted eight states during the past summer. The two general license holders in the club are co-presidents Roland Smith, WABCHV and Bruce Whitney, WABEQ. The secretary-treasurer is Charley Soor.

B'field Hills Barons

By JOHN STERNER
Special Writer

The most enthusiastic and successful Homecoming in BHHS history is over.

The three-day festivities started on Thursday, Nov. 1, with a bonfire near the football field. A sock hop, the "Gym Jam," was held afterwards. On Friday, school spirit reached an all-time high. An hour-long pep assembly fired students and football players up for the championship football game with the West Bloomfield Lakers. During the assembly, the seniors out-bellied the other classes to win the cheering trophy.

Later that afternoon, the largest crowd in Barons football history, well over 5000 people, watched Bloomfield and the Lakers battle to a tense 19-19 tie. The Barons and Lakers finished the season as co-champions of the Wayne-Oakland League with identical records of 7-0-1. This year's team is the first football champion to come out of Bloomfield Hills and the first to finish the season with an undefeated record.

Pre-game ceremonies included the naming of senior Linda Waldron as Homecoming Queen. The seniors made a clean sweep of the day by taking the float trophy. Saturday night Pep Club sponsored the fifth annual Homecoming Dance.

The senior play, "Meet Me In St. Louis," under the direction of Mr. Glenn Wooster and Assistant director Molly Sluder is well on the way to being performed on Nov. 29, and Dec. 1. The seniors in the play are Pat Ferguson, Mike Locklin, Cindy Amberger, Ruth Clevers, Sharon Snyder, Barb Albrecht, Vicki Saxauer, Sandy Braun, John Shibley, Jack Pistero, Carol Eichmeyer, Sue Nunn, Ginny vanDyk, Bev Bowles, Jim Rice, Ron Juk, Betty Sheppard, Mike Stanton, Dave West, and a feline named Pepper. The comedy, set in 1904 St. Louis, will be the first presentation in the new theater for the public.

Tuesday, Nov. 7, tryouts for the 1962-63 Barons basketball squad began under the direction of Coach Ed Wichert. Lettermen from last year and members of the football team did not have to report until Monday, Nov. 12. Last year the squad finished second behind Northville.

November 8, at the Bloomfield Hills Junior High School, the Dads Club held its annual sports banquet. Present were all high school students participating in fall sports at BHHS. Don Watrick was the guest speaker.

Students taking chemistry and physical science visited the Phoenix Memorial Laboratory at the University of Michigan on Nov. 14. Some 200 students took the day off for the trip.

Cranbrook Cranes

November 8, at 8:30 a.m., Mr. Carl Wonnberger, the head of the Cranbrook English department; Mr. Floyd W. Bunt, Cranbrook chemistry master; Mr. Richard Heaverlich, Cranbrook mathematics master; Mr. Peter Wilson, Cranbrook biology master; and Mr. Ronald Krash, Cranbrook history master, left the Cranbrook Auto Court for the 56th annual meeting of the Independent Schools Association of the Central States that was held in Saint Katharine's School, Davenport, Iowa. They arrived in Davenport about early evening the same day.

Mr. Wonnberger and Mr. Bunt were members of the teachers' Council Executive Committee; Mr. Wonnberger was the associate director of the council's committee; and Mr. Bunt was an ex officio member. Mr. Heaverlich was a member of the panel for the discussion, "Advanced Placement and Other Programs for Especially Able Students." Mr. Wonnberger was also the moderator for the discussion, "Man and His World." All of the sessions were held in the Blackhawk Hotel, Davenport. The school was not able to handle close to 400 teachers who attended the meetings.

Cranbrook's delegation of masters left Davenport about 4 p.m., Nov. 10 and arrived back at Cranbrook early Sunday morning. Cranbrook, as always in the past years, upheld the name of the school with a respectable delegation of masters. The sessions were profited by all very much.

Kingswood School

The hockey season for the Kingswood variety hockey team, the Aardvarks, has now come to a close. Hockey play-day at Grosjean Pointe University School, on Saturday, Nov. 3, was the final event, and at Play-day Kingswood came out very successfully. The Kingswood teams and the teams of the several other schools participating played several games in the morning as they were being judged for final decision on the All-Detroit teams. At noon they had lunch, and then each school put on a skit. After that the final decisions on judging were announced.

On the All-Detroit Reserve, which is chosen from reserve team players, Kingswood had Jan Stanton, Diane Bugas, Diane Holmes, Cheryl Lambert, and Janie Guest, and honorable mentions went to Julie Graham and Ann Clark. On the first and second All-Detroit teams, which are chosen from varsity players, an honorable mention went to Julie Williams. On the second team, Kingswood had Barb Black, Mary Ellen Douglas, and Connie Green, and on the first Team, Ann Livingston.

On Tuesday, Nov. 6, the junior varsity (10th grade members) challenged the reserve team of the varsity hockey squad to a game, which aroused much interest in the school. The reserves beat the J.V.'s, 3-1.
