for a luxury restaurant and motor-hotel, with a cocktail lounge. The second hearing is set for 9. Rezoning of lots located on the north side of Maple, east of Telegraph, will be discussed. A reclassification of one lot from O-1 to B-3 and the second lot from O-1 to parking is sought.

The Maple property would be used for an extension of Damman's Hardware and a parking area for customers.

More than 225,000 tons of steel wire were used by mattress and other sleeping furniture makers during 1961. This would make a single wire strand more than 2.2 million miles long in the frequently-used number 11 steel wire gauge.

Bus Law

local paper, has editorially endorsed its passage on the local level.

For the law to be effective in villages and cities, it must be enacted on the local level. It requires motorists to stop for children getting on or off school buses.

COMMISSIONERS held off a decision last week so that they might hear from the PTO Council and from two of their colleagues on the local level.

George Whitehead, president of the PTA Council, told The Eccentric:

"We will support the state ordinance as it is now, although we don't like it. We feel it is inadequate and confusing. But we believe it is a lot better than no law."

He said "we must look after" the children who would benefit from the protection, "even if it were necessary for just one child."

WHITEHEAD SAID PTA officials were "very pleased" that the City was going to work out an ordinance.

"We intend to use our influence with the PTA councils in Pontiac and Royal Oak," he said, "to have the whole thing uniform in Oakland County."

He said further they will "use our influence on the Lansing level, through the state PTA organization, to effect a uniform ordinance for all of us."

Whitehead said that in the time before the state law is enacted here, "we urge our people to stop for school buses regardless whether they're flashing blue, or red or whatever."

COMMISSIONER Charles Renfrew, one of the two absent last week, asked Monday night if there were any comparison between the cities that have adopted the law and those which have not.

Those that have, said City Manager L. R. Gare, are primarily those with a "rustic atmosphere," with rural, two-lane type of pavements.

William H. Burgum, the other commissioner absent last week, said he wasn't sure but what there wouldn't be some protection provided through the measure.

PART OF the argument has been that buses not included would not have to be marked the same as those covered by the law.

If Birmingham did not adopt it, would there be more confusion to motorists from neighboring communities that do have it, asked Mayor Florence H. Willet.

"There is not an accident problem," said the city manager.

Ingram pointed out that four school safety experts contacted by Chief of Police Ralph W. Mosley had said they could see no benefit to Birmingham if it enacted the ordinance.

MOXLEY ADDED that "one of the major problems" here is that three-fourths of the children riding in buses do so in the improperly marked ones.

"There would be no protection for them."

But Commissioner Robert Page argued that there would be protection for the 25 per cent who do ride in the properly identified vehicles.

He argued that "normal, intelligent people" would stop for all school buses, whether marked uniformly or not.

"COULDN'T WE make the ordinance more stringent?" asked Renfrew.

The state act says only that it may be adopted by villages and cities; it makes no other provision, explained James H. Howlett, city legal counsel.

"If it provides any measure of safety to some of the children," said Commissioner William E. Roberts, "it is our responsibility to enact it."

Roberts then offered the motion to direct the city attorney to draft an ordinance patterned after the state law, which passed, 5-2.

Easement

ings would be measured if the necessary signatures were not obtained.

Ray Smit, representing city engineers Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May, said the easement should be obtained as soon as possible to expedite sewer construction in that area.

Smit said progress on sewer construction was "slightly ahead of schedule" but that in a moment the work could affect the speed of the work.

COUNCILMAN Vincent Zattel introduced a resolution aimed at eventually setting a policy on the functions of the city engineers.

His resolution proposed that, to eliminate possible conflict of interest, ALN&M should not represent both the city and private land developers at the same time.

As drafted, the resolution would not apply until after present work for the developers is completed. It would seek the opinion of the engineers on the proposal and ask them to set an effective date at which time the proposed resolution would become effective.

ZATTEL EMPHASIZED that his resolution was not intended to reflect on ALN&M's conduct of city business but said that he was, "at times, frustrated" about whom you're talking for.

The engineers have, at numerous times in Lathrup's history, done work for Mr. and Mrs. Charles D.

Kelley. Smit said that he had always brought such projects before the council for approval before working for the Kelleys.

SMIT SAID he was surprised at the resolution in view of the long history of council approval of ALN&M-Kelley projects. In answer to a question put by Councilman John R. Kohl, the engineer said the city had benefited from the firm's knowledge of city problems, gained through planning water, sewer and other improvements for the Kelleys in the past.

Conger commended the firm for "walking the tightrope successfully for so many years" but added that the principal involved in Zattel's resolution was good in that it might avoid possible conflicts of interest later.

MRS. KELLEY commented that ALN&M projects for her would be completed in about a year.

The resolution will be discussed further at later meetings.

Smit noted that his firm did not ordinarily do work for private developers but that the Kelleys' insistence on quality work would eliminate any possibility of conflicting interests.

In other storm sewer construction business, Stone and Smit were asked to investigate the possibility of setting up a coordinated program that would enable residents to have culverts installed in front of their homes.

The culvert work would be paid for individually but might prove less expensive under a coordinated program.
