He's a Tall, Young Man— And a Mighty Busy One

By NITA HARD
Special Writer

There's a tall, young man from Bingham Farms, Richard VanDusen, who may well provide some of the leadership of the future.

Over and above his present ardor for party politics, this young lawyer has an impressive background and cumulative experience that belies his "thirties" age.

Even though the name VanDusen is well-known (there are many VanDusens in this area and all pace-setters, too) we must concede that a certain one, Richard, keeps recurring more and more frequently wherever you go.

His name has appeared in print many times and he's often called on as a guest speaker.

thread his way through a small swarm of little girls; VanDusen's three charming daughters, Amanda, 9½, Lisa, 8, and Kate, 6.

Although his wife, Barbara, and his children moved to Bingham Farms about five years ago, they had lived there for a period of time between 1934 and 1944, occupying a large house near their present home.

IN THE INTERVENING years, VanDusen had gone to the University of Minnesota, playing varsity football as center for two years. After that it was Harvard Law school where he got his degree and where he was married. Along the line, he served in the Navy for three years, eight months of which were spent on a destroyer.

Today he is associated with the firm of Dickinson, Wright, McKean and Cudlip, corporation legal counselors. One of his dreams, he says, is "being a good enough lawyer so that I won't have to rake the leaves at home each fall."

Obviously there's very little time in which to rake leaves.

LAST WEEK, for instance, he could be found casually and comfortably sweated, unwinding from a whirlwind visit to E. Lansing and the Michigan-Michigan State game where, that afternoon, he had accompanied gubernatorial candidate George Romney.

A visitor to his home would find

Rubbish, Garbage Pact Okayed for Birmingham

Birmingham city commissioners Monday night approved a three-year contract with the Detroit Rubbish Co. for collection of refuse and garbage in the city.

T. C. Brien, superintendent of the Department of Public Works, said the firm's bid is $1,000 ($333.33 per year) lower than the present contract. Price is figured on a unit basis.

The Detroit Rubbish Co. has picked up the rubbish in Birmingham the past three years.

THE 1963-66 contract provides for a performance bond of $25,000 as compared to the previous $6,000. The total weight of rubbish and container has been increased to 80 pounds; it had been 60.

The new regulations allow for pickup of "less than two bushels of construction material as rubbish per week per residence."

The contract provides for pickup of garbage and rubbish at the curb, and at the rear of designated properties.

This & That

Now that the U.S. Congress has adjourned, perhaps the U.S. citizen will have the opportunity of letting its senators and representatives "know how they feel about high taxes and more and more centralized government in Washington, D.C." One way is to attend meetings where these officials speak . . . by asking them pointed questions. By telling them you oppose the drift into Socialism, you may give them courage to stand up against a President and his group of academic "thinkers" who already have shown their contempt for traditional Americanism!

Grace Kelly and her Prince Ranier are finding that their tiny principality of Monaco cannot fight the Republic of France. DeGaulle is determined to remove Monaco from the position of being a refuge for tax evasion. Prince Ranier's arrogant defiance of DeGaulle's demands reminds one of the comic opera of long ago. After all, Ranier inherited an area less than the area of a good U.S. family farm—the chief income of which was part of the gambling proceeds of its famous casino. Yes, the roulette wheel always has turned in favor of the Ranier financial security . . . but now another wheel of fortune is whirling, and "where it stops" suggests a change in the fortunes of Grace's romantic adventure.

Now that the 1962 professional baseball season has ended, with the football season soon to run its seasonal course, what will the American public have for amusement? Why, the answer is plain—the unending episodes of that most expensive of all paid entertainments which we call "politics" . . . this, certainly, is the most expensive of all!

Service Center Is Top Priority In County Plans

A top priority tag has been placed on development of facilities at the Oakland County Service Center on Telegraph Road by the Ways and Means Committee of the County Board of Supervisors.

The committee recommended to the supervisors this week that the county seek Federal matching funds for projects totaling $1,087,500. The figure would include storm and sanitary sewers, water and steam lines and a $150,000 parking lot.

IN APPROVING the million-dollar project at the service center, the committee by-passed other proposals which included a Children's Village, a new wing on the Courthouse and a civic auditorium.

The recommendation to link the application for Federal funds to the service center is a reversal from a larger program offered by the committee two weeks ago.

THE CHILDREN'S Village, proposed by Probate Judge Arthur E. Moore to care for children under county jurisdiction, will be studied by the Welfare and the Buildings and Grounds Committee jointly in an effort to obtain preliminary cost figures.

The Village proposal has been divorced from plans for Federal aid and may be put to a bond issue vote of county taxpayers.
