GIL JORDAN SAYS:

If You Act Helpless Enough, You'll Get Plenty of Help

My father used to say, "If the wind blows your hat off never chase it. Stand perfectly still and some stranger will chase after it and bring it back to you."

And the strange part of it is that this theory works like a charm. The kind of soul who recovers your hat will be spattered with mud, his shoe shine ruined, one cuff link missing and out of breath, while you stand there cool, immaculate—and very grateful.

If you play your cards right, you can avoid many of life's drudgeries and inconveniences merely by acting helpless.

NOW THERE'S a world of difference between being lazy and being helpless, for in being helpless you must appear to be willing to do the job you're trying to duck out of without it being too obvious.

Let's suppose you have some wall papering to do, but hesitate to pay for today's labor costs. The recommended procedure here is to buy the wall paper, the paste and other necessary equipment, thus making it appear that you're going to tackle the job yourself.

You start by making a stab at removing the old wall paper, making it look an amateurish as possible. Ten minutes of tearing off loose paper should be sufficient to set the stage.

THE NEXT STEP is to have your wife invite a couple in for an evening of bridge. Don't invite just anyone, but select a couple where the husband has boasted of his ability to apply wall paper.

When the invited couple arrives be sure to act a little tired and discouraged but game to the very end. This is very important: Do not, I repeat, do not mention anything about the wall papering project, for timing is very important.

About eleven o'clock when your male opponent is getting good cards (and skillful shuffling will help) your wife will sigh and comment on how she "dreads tomorrow."

"Dread tomorrow?" Your visitors will ask with some degree of alarm. "What's happening tomorrow?"

"Oh, nothing," your wife will reply sadly, "except Tom is going to ruin my house. He's... he's insisting on papering the den and he hasn't the slightest idea how to go about it. I tried to stop him," she will continue, "but you know of coffee."

"Oh, for heaven's sake, Helen," your hostess will reply, "if that's all you're worrying about why don't you let Charlie come over and lend a hand?"

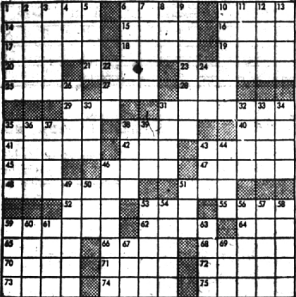

Charlie who is anxious to prove his wall-papering ability will chime in with, "Papering that den isn't anything, Tom, suppose I get over here early, say by nine o'clock, I'll bring my steamer and the rest of my equipment and we'll be out of here by noontime."

While he's raking his neck and freezing his fingers, you will be inside having your second cup of coffee.

By studied helplessness I've seen fences built, bird boxes constructed, electrical wiring installed and trees changed. And the beauty machine into your driveway and roasts because everyone knows complete the job. Cost: One cup you're too helpless and clumsy.

Music

York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Orchestra and the NBC Symphony under Toscanini in 1957. The choir toured 17 South and Central American countries as the first youth group to represent the U.S. abroad under President Eisenhower's International Program for Cultural Presentations.

The concert will include sacred and secular music followed by Hayden's opera "The Apothecary" done in costume.

Fox, returning by popular demand after a sell-out concert last season, will appear May 7. He is organizer at the Riverside Church in New York City.

The first British sports writer of record was a nun. She was Dame Juliana Barnes, the prioress of a convent back in the 17th century. Her treatises on "Hawking, Hunting and Fishing with an Angler" were published under the title of "The Book of Albans," the first English Book ever written about sports, and one of the most influential books of its time.
