Village youngsters will have a fine time "blowing around" this character, as they enjoy the games being readied for Franklin's annual barbecue Roundup Saturday. Franklin Community Association members (from left) Elton Nichols, Dr. John Burger, round-up chairman, and Jim Kozel agree that the youngsters will have a ball—or two or three—as they aim at Mr. "Button-Up." Nichols and Kozel are midway chairman for the event. (See story 1-A).

Club Dispute Settled; Operations Resume Slowly

The six-week strike against 29 private clubs in the metropolitan area ended Monday but it will be some time before activities will be back in full swing.

The 1,300 members of the Hotel and Restaurant Workers Union voted, 836 to 50, to accept the offer of the Detroit Club Managers Association.

A new three-year pact was first approved by managers and other club officials early Monday.

AN EIGHT-CENT - an hour across-the-board wage increase for all non-tip or non-commission employees is called for in the new contract. The first two cents is effective immediately, with another three cents due in May of 1963 and 1964.

Employees who collect tips will receive a six-cent an hour increase.

Other provisions of the new pact include pensions, contributions to health and welfare funds, improved policy on granting days off, raising of minimum scale wages and an increase in pay for holiday work.

Local club officials have indicated that the clubs will take their time in the re-opening of the bars and food service.

Oakland Hills officials have not yet decided when to resume food service. The bar had been kept open during the strike with members handling the chores.

BIRMINGHAM COUNTRY CLUB officials were to have met Tuesday night to plan their next move.

At the Bloomfield Open Hunt no action will be taken until after the board meeting scheduled for next Tuesday.

Orchard Lake Country Club was to reopen the bar Wednesday and plans to resume food service on Saturday.

Southfield Town and Country Club is expected to reopen next Wednesday.

Aid to Festival Costs Birmingham Total of $1,500

Cost to the City of Birmingham for its assistance to Bloomfield Art Association for its Arts Festival last summer amounted to $1,492.24, City Manager L. R. Guss informed city commissioners Monday night.

Of that amount, $1,400.30 was for manpower used in the erection and dismantling of the geodesic dome at the Art Center on S. Cranbrook, maintenance and cleanup of the area during the festival, installation of warning lights and barricades, moving and other jobs.

The City had appropriated $2,000 for the project.

COMMISSIONER William E. Roberts said that although the festival was successful, it provided no festival atmosphere for the downtown district. In previous years, the festival was staged in Shain Park and on downtown streets.

Zoning Petition Goes to Planners; Complaint Refuted

A petition to rezone property at 707 Knox St. from parking to residential was referred to the Birmingham Plan Board by city commissioners Monday night.

The petitioners, Dean N. and Betty S. Smith of Clarkston, claim that the property was rezoned from residential to parking at a commission meeting without their being informed that it would be considered.

They said they had not made formal application for the change. They complained that under the parking classification the property carries "a tremendously increased tax assessment" over what it would be as residential.

COMMISSIONERS said Monday night that commission minutes reveal that the Smiths were aware of the change.

After a brief discussion, they referred the request for the reversal of zoning to the plan board.
