CON-CON REPORT New Safeguards for Property Owners

Owners of real and personal property are provided with new safeguards against exorbitant taxes in the proposed new Michigan constitution. There was a general feeling among delegates to the convention that property, as a base for taxation in Michigan, is frequently overburdened. New measures were written into the state's proposed basic law to protect owners of real and personal property from excessive levies.

A major revision in the property tax structure is that which eliminates the present constitutional requirement of assessment at cash value. The new constitution specifies that the standard for assessment shall not exceed 50 per cent of cash value.

RECOGNIZING THAT some jurisdictions currently assess some property in excess of this limit, effective date of the limitation is postponed by the new document until 1966. A standard of value fixed by law gives the legislature freedom to change the standard to reflect changes in the general price structure. Current inequities have resulted, in many cases, from the inability of assessors, with inadequate staffs, to keep up with changes in the dollar value of real property. Personal property assessments have tended to follow inflationary trends more rapidly.

However, the new section would permit the legislature to authorize initiative procedure within a county which would allow a majority of the qualified electors to adopt a fixed division of the millage among the local units, so long as the total does not exceed 18 mills. This fixed division of the millage among the local units, so long as the total does not exceed 18 mills. Lutheran Church Plans Banquet At Area School

The fifth anniversary of the dedication of Beautiful Savior Lutheran Church, North Adams Road, will be marked with an anniversary banquet at Eastover School Friday evening. Past presidents and charter members of the congregation will be honored at the affair.

This is a change from the current provisions which permit all qualified electors to ballot on long-term millage increases. Getting ready to sell your car? Advertise it in the Classified Ads.

Counseling Program For Minister in High Demand at MSU

A Michigan State University program in pastoral counseling, begun only five years ago, is already the largest of its kind and must turn away many applicants. The program was started at the request of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders and now has about 300 students studying for the master's degree and 30 more at the doctoral level.
