NITA HARI

Very soon now, students at Franklin school will be able to browse through a streamlined scrapbook of their school and get a better idea of how things have changed in the past few years.

Mr. Robert Golby, PTA historian has been culling through old records, photos and press releases to update and condense the highlights of the school's progress. The original scrapbook was started in 1946 and has been faithfully added to until it is time to sort out duplications of information.

MRS. GOLBY hopes that residents having group photos of former classes or other good pictures or articles about the school will offer them for the "archives." A special table in Principal Warren Tate's office will be provided for this epic effort where those interested can spend a leisurely time in enjoyment of the past.

REFLECTIONS

Now that the holidays are over and we are well on our way into 1963, it behooves me to look back on 1962, for no business knows where it is going if it does not know where it has been.

Examination of the past 12 months verifies my belief that there is public acceptance of the small shop and a demand for the individual craftsman . . . that antiques and reproductions, if carefully selected for charm and interest and honestly priced, do not require mass promotion or high pressure selling . . . that the high percentage of repeat business in both goods and services I have enjoyed would not be possible without the feeling of mutual respect that can be established only through a direct owner-customer relationship.

I am pleased and gratified that so many people found the appearance of my shop, the products of my manufactory and the quality of my goods of such interest that they brought their out-of-town guests in for a visit the past year.

Now for 1963? Let's just keep the foregoing in mind. Who needs resolutions?!
