

Arrangements Being Made For Exhibit

As time draws nearer for the "World's Fair of Missions," sponsored by Ascension, Our Shepherd and Redeemer Lutheran Churches, Birmingham, the tempo of activity has been "stepped up."

Strange objects, such as a ricksha, carved buffalo horns and palm trees, are being transported toward Redeemer Church, site of the fair. This frenzy of activity has not been limited to adults only. Children of the three congregations, in grades 1 through 8, have designed posters for a "Mission Fair" poster contest. They are competing for a special award to be presented to the winner in each grade.

POSTERS WILL BE judged in each of the three Sunday schools. The winner from each grade in each church will be judged to determine the final winners, and these posters will be displayed at the fair. Gene Dawber and Ken Walker from the Triad Studies in Detroit are serving as judges. Speaking of posters, bright blue and white posters are around town announcing "The World's Fair of Missions" from 6 to 9:30 p.m. Oct. 9 through 11. There is no charge for admission.

Three members of the St. James Episcopal Church choir were honored Sept. 22 for 20 years service. Receiving the honors were Mrs. Harold S. Sherman of Rochester; Mrs. James Moon, 2955 Eastways, Bloomfield Hills; and George Mullin of Farmington. Mrs. Sherman and Mr. Mullin have served as soprano and baritone soloists, and Mrs. Moon has served as interim soloist. At a social gathering following the morning church services, humorous awards were presented to the three honorees, depicting their 20 years service to the choir and the church.

DURING THE 20 years, these three have seen St. James grow from a small fieldstone building to a modern edifice and have served under four directors—Waldo Fellows, Donald Frey, Barton Meech
