Behind The Store Fronts

With ANGUS MCKELLAR

After 15 years on Livernois Ave., the Linen Closet will open soon in the Bloomfield Plaza Shopping Center, Telegraph and Maple next to Krage's new store. Owners Lee Saltz and Mrs. Saltz make up the husband and wife business team at the store. (Mrs. Saltz is more frequently known in the trade as Miss Mandel).

In addition to linens and domestics for home accents, the Saltzes specialize in the custom monogramming of special orders of towels, bedspreads, initialed handkerchiefs and similar work. The shop also boasts the largest collection in the United States of edgeings for bath, closets, bedrooms and for shelves.

Marianne Barnett of Bloomfield Fashion Shop, is also director of public relations for the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, is a patient at Harper Hospital for a few days. Room number is S-44 in case you want to drop her a card.

Jack Ball (of the McClellan-Ball Co.) and Mrs. Ball are back from a motor trip through the Carolinas, a stop at Williamsburg, Va., swinging back through Gatlinburg, Tenn., and home. A good trip, the Balls report, although it was a bit early for the autumn hues that far South. In contrast, Bill Zabriskie (also of McClellan-Ball) tells of a riot of beautiful fall colors in Northern Michigan last week end. Around Cheboygan and the Jordan River valley areas, there were so many enthralled foliage-watchers that overnight rooms were scarce, he said.

Bill opines that fall color-viewing should still be fairly good this week end in the North country as there was considerable green remaining last week end. Of course, rains and high winds could change the picture quickly.

Douglas Brown of the Automobile Club of Michigan's Birmingham division mentioned to us that he thought the peak in color was reached last week in the North country and that from now on the leaves will be dropping off fast because of so much dry weather.

Harold Rod of Olsen's Market on Brown St. not only is something of an artist with a fiddler's bow but is an artisan as well when putting the finishing touches to a violin.

It seems that Harold located a collection of old violins, made in Detroit in the 1930's from an old redwood log which was a sort of curiosity for years near the old log cabin in Palmer Park. Most of his spare time is spent finishing the violins.

Merritt Olsen, an old hand with a fiddle himself, vouches that the notes are as sweet and clear as from any violin he's heard hereabouts.

The folks at Alban's Bottle & Basket Shoppe, Hunter Blvd. at E. Maple, entertained capacity crowds last week end in celebration of the completion of the remodeled and enlarged carry-out department.

James McKee has bought the beauty shop, Hair Designs by Charles, 544 N. Woodward. The new name is James McKee's Styling Salon. Charles will remain with the shop for the time being.

Vickers Corp. has announced the promotion of two Birmingham area men to vice president posts.

John H. Garwood has been named vice president of Vickers Incorporated Division of Sperry Rand Corp. In his new position, Garwood's present activities in organization planning and management development will be expanded to include all management, supervisory and professional employees of the corporation.

Garwood, 4641 McEwen Drive, Bloomfield Township, has been with Vickers for over twenty years, holding a series of administrative posts in the financial, management and personnel areas.

William F. Driver has been named vice president-marketing. Since 1957, Driver has been marketing manager of Vickers Machinery Hydraulics Division. He has occupied a series of sales administrative posts with the company since 1945.

Driver, of 2594 Comfort Drive, West Bloomfield Township, holds a degree in chemical engineering from Auburn University and is a member of the Society of Automotive Engineers, American Ordnance Association, American Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, and the Engineering Society of Detroit.

Currently he is chairman of the Marketing Council of MAPI (Machinery and Allied Products Institute), and a member of the Board of Governors, National Conference on Industrial Hydraulics.
