10 Pct. of State's Teachers Changed Jobs This Month

By ELMER E. WHITE
Michigan Press Association

Teacher turnover in Michigan ran about 10 per cent this fall, according to a survey by the State Department of Public Instruction, Superintendent Lynn M. Bartlett believes that most teachers who did not return this fall to the jobs they held during the 1962-63 school year went to other school districts.

This was the first year the department compiled statistics on the number of teachers who do not return to the same school system in a succeeding year.

The 10 per cent attrition represented 6,921 teachers.

ANALYSIS of the survey showed 27.2 per cent went to other school districts, another 19.6 per cent retired to rear families, 15 per cent retired, 9.4 per cent obtained other employment and 10 per cent died.

The other 28.7 per cent gave up their teaching posts for unknown or miscellaneous reasons, Bartlett said.

The study also showed the number of full-time teachers in Michigan reached an all-time high of 65,146 last year.

The study showed there were 21,149 male teachers and 43,997 women. Most of the men were in the secondary schools, with only 5,501 teaching at the elementary level. Men outnumbered women by 15,648 to 11,962 in the secondary system last year.

THE SAME unfortunate increase in accidents that is being recorded on the highways is taking place on Michigan's waterways, according to the State Police.

A provisional report through mid-September showed 215 persons had drowned and 292 persons were injured in 474 accidents. This represented an increase of 13 deaths over last year.

The injuries in the first nine months of the year were higher than the total number hurt in water accidents during all of 1962, the department said. The number of accidents also was higher than the full-year figure of 457 accidents for 1962.

STATE POLICE Commissioner Joseph A. Childs noted that water accident deaths and injuries generally show a marked decrease after Labor Day.

Outdoor enthusiasts are reminded, however, that they should exercise due caution in any activity in or near water during the remainder of the year, Childs said.

Water accidents are not confined to summer activities, Childs noted. Three of the victims this year fell through ice, and 40 others died when they fell from bridges, banks, docks or piers.

PLANNING FOR the annual Michigan Week has come to be nearly a year-round job for the organizers of the event.

Now a new selling campaign is getting under way headed by A. R. Saunders, executive vice president of the Michigan Real Estate Association.

Known as the Michigan Minute-men, the new unit hopes to attract new industries, tourists and residents.

Working as leaders of the Minute-men are executive secretaries or managers of 12 organizations representing civic, farm, labor, religious, professional and trade associations.

Each of the associations in turn will enlist members of the Minute-men, which derived its name from the volunteer units trained before the Revolutionary War to "fight at a minute's notice."

Oakland County NASW to Meet

The monthly meeting of the Oakland County Chapter of NASW will be held at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Oriental Room of Devon Gables.

Guest speaker will be Carl E. Ingraham, attorney, who will discuss "Legal Implications of Social Working Practice."

Ingraham is past president, Rehabilitation Institute of Metropolitan Detroit; past-president, Oakland County Legal Aid Society; past president, Family Service of Oakland County; past chairman, Section of Family Law of the American Bar Association; and, currently, a member of the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association.

INGRAHAM SERVES on the Committee of Social Work and the Lawyer of the Family Service Association of America. He was recently elected to the Board of Directors of Family Service Association of America.

He is a member of the United Community Services, a past mayor of Birmingham, a current member of the Birmingham City Commission and a member of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors (serving as chairman of the Legislative Committee and member of the Juvenile Affairs Committee).
