Marianews Awarded $25 In Contest

Marian High School's newspaper, the Marianews, has been awarded a $25 savings bond for their answer to the question: "What has your staff done to stimulate student interest and participation in church and civic affairs on the local, state, national or international level?"

This question was asked by the Aquinas News of Aquinas High School, LaCrosse, Wis., in connection with the Regional Catholic Press Day held at Aquinas, Saturday.

IN ANSWER to this question, Sister M. Judine, I.H.M., staff advisor, and her staff reported that they have taken polls and printed editorials on racial strife, have attended and actively participated in City Council meetings, attended workshops and printed articles on church and civic work.

Therese Peterson and Kathleen Ann Sullivan, both of the Marianews staff, participated in a panel discussion with representatives from the other winning schools on this question at the Press Day.

Themed "Thy Kingdom Come", the press meet included journalism students and school publication writers, as well as their advisors, from the states of Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Michigan, and North and South Dakota.

Marian Model United Nations Begins Final Planning Stage

By KATHLEEN DARGA
Special Writer

Marian Model United Nations president Linda Gibson has announced the particulars involved in this year's assemblies.

Scheduled for Nov. 16-17, the general assembly meetings will be attended by 159 delegates, representing 53 nations. Seven of the delegations will be composed of Brother Rice students.

Questions debated in the fashion of the actual UN will be the Seating of Red China, Race Relations in South Africa and Palestine Refugee problems. Secretary-General Jean Scholl will work closely with committee chairmen Carol Bolz, Frances Thurber and Kathleen Sullivan.

All classes have the opportunity to participate: sophomore, junior and senior delegates and secretariat members have been preparing since May of this year, while freshmen will be enlisted to serve as pages and police force members.

Faculty moderators for this event include Sister M. Veronita, Sister Jerome Marie and Sister Kenneth Marie.

MARIAN'S all-school athletic day, Oct. 18, was accounted a success by all students and faculty members. The senior class captured top honors in both athletic events and spirit. Award for the outstanding banner went to the sophomore class.

In the climactic volleyball game between faculty members and class officers, Sisters Veronita, Richard Mary and Clare Estelle scored winning points against officers and freshman representatives Peggy Boyle and Patricia Doran. The entire program was arranged by the Girls' Athletic association, led by Kathleen O'Donnell, and under the direction of Miss Annette Ross, faculty advisor.

Saturday has been announced as the day for the senior class-sponsored hootenanny. The evening of folk singing will feature several professional groups as well as area talent en masse. Class officers Maureen Anderman, Nancy Brosius, Barbara Schuck and Kathleen Snyder will work closely with committee heads Judy Heinen, invitations; Patricia Keenan, decorations; Gael Osborne, arrangements; Karen Pekala, refreshments; and Carol Torzewski, publicity.

IN CONNECTION with senior religion classes' study of the lay apostolate, Mrs. Marie Loftis spoke to students on the subject of her work with the Christian Family movement. This group is concerned with the elevation of society through the family.

Although many members of the first graduating class of Marian have already achieved recognition in various academic and cultural fields, three 1963 graduates have won public recognition for their activities. Miss Sharon Malover is awaiting publication of one of her poems in a modern anthology published by McGraw-Hill.

Miss Katherine Mack received commendation as one of the top ten freshmen during an honors assembly at St. Mary's college, Notre Dame, in recognition of her academic qualifications.

Rice Students Learn Of Missionary Work

By JOHN McGUCKIN
Special Writer

While the second session of the Vatican II Council in Rome is discussing Catholic missionary work in Africa, Brother Rice High School students received an eyewitness account of the Church's missionary effort last week.

Brother Rice seniors viewed a film entitled "From the Shadow of the Mau Mau" and spoke with the Reverend Father Gaspari, a member of the Consolata Mission Society, which presented the motion picture.

Both the film and Father Gaspari's short talk vividly described the hardships under which the Consolata missionaries work and the rich harvest which is the result of this work. The Consolata Mission Society was founded in Italy and has been working in Africa for the past fifty years.

BROTHER J. A. Brosnan has temporarily replaced Brother D. D. Crimmins in the Brother Rice English Department. Brother Crimmins has been transferred to New York City due to illness in his family. Brother Brosnan is from Rice High School in New York, where he taught American History and English IV. He is now teaching senior English and junior Religion at Brother Rice.

The Aquinas Chapter of the National Honor Society held its first meeting of the year last week to lay plans for the future year. The organization welcomed 24 new members.

Elections were held to fill the four empty positions on the executive board of the Chapter. The executive board, composed of the four officers and four representatives of the general membership, makes all major policy decisions for the group. Reelected to a second term on the executive board were John Pietsch and Doug Heisler. Chosen from the new junior members were Pete Foley and Pat Feehan.

Among the Chapter's major activities this year will be the induction of the new members and the second annual College Night to be held next March. The Inductions Committee is headed by Craig McTyre and is composed of John McAllister, Jerry Palms, Jim Sweeton and Pat Feehan. The College Night Preparatory Committee is composed of Jim Harrington, chairman; Mike Klewicki, George McLaughlin, Greg Prokopp and Rick Hnath.

THE BROTHER Rice French Club, "Le Cercle Francais," is not new this year, but it is young. After a year of experience under Brother J. A. Grimaldi's direction, the group is preparing to launch a series of activities.

Movies and slides on France and the French will become an integral part of each meeting, and a different French display will be on view each month.

Affiliated with the French Club is BRHS's French newspaper, "La Tour." Published several times last year, "La Tour" is now edited by junior Tom Shusterbauer.
