

Behind the Welcome Mat

by CORRINE ABATT

The bouquet for the best answer of her grandchildren, her cherry of the week goes to Mrs. Clarence Brunner of Detroit. Marian Leininger, Mrs. Brunner's daughter, passed the story along to the column.

One day, while Marian's mother was having her hair done, she and the beauty operator talked about home decoration. The operator asked Mrs. Brunner what period her furniture was. Mrs. Brunner thought a moment about her home, the mahogany pieces in the living room, a few things that had survived the raising of three active sons and a daughter, the pictures on a report of missionary activities in Alaska for the Catholic Students Mission Crusade. Nan wrote for and received information from Alaska and with the material came a picture of Mary and Jesus.

IT IS a moving and thought-provoking thing for here they are shown with black hair and eyes, and brown skin. They both wear fur parkas and Mary has a white cape trimmed with brown fur. Jesus is dressed in a fur jacket and warm looking fur trimmed boots.

When you think about it, to an Eskimo child who has seen few but his own people and little but snow in his lifetime, how else would Mary and Jesus look?

AND RIGHT at my own doorstep I found an example of words meaning different things to different people.

My dog friend from next door, Mike, a shaggy Golden Retriever returned home after a throat operation and when I went to visit him I told his mistress, Marian Leininger, that I thought he looked a little peaked.

"Peaked?" Marian said. "How can a shaggy dog look peaked?"

I hardly had time to come up with an explanation when our friend Marilyn Bailey topped us.

He took a quick look at the black dog and said quickly, "I think

Oakland Hills Bridge Winners Are Announced

On Feb. 6, the women of the Oakland Hills Country Club began their fifth year of afternoon duplicate bridge gatherings. The group meets twice monthly during the spring and fall sessions.

The winners of Wednesday's you're right, she does look a little pale."

If black dogs can look pale, then surely shaggy dogs can look peaked—at least to some people.

tournament are at North-South position: first, Mrs. James W. Gunn and Mrs. G. Ralph Angie; second, Mrs. Walter Westman and Mrs. Arthur S. Hudson, and third, Mrs. George H. Quinn and Mrs. Harvey W. Ewald.

In the East-West position, winners were first, Mrs. William S. Cooper and Mrs. John W. Chenu; second, Mrs. David E. White and Mrs. Kirk Horgan, and third, Mrs. F. J. Sehn and Mrs. Alton J. Hole.

Mrs. C. Boyd Stockmeyer is chairman of the afternoon duplicate bridge games, which is sponsored by the Oakland Hills Country Club's special activities committee of which Don W. Graham is chairman. It is directed by Mrs. Ernest Clinton.

ECCENTRIC PHOTO

From the White House

A steel engraved print of the White House autographed by Jacqueline Kennedy was received by Mrs. Earle C. Heft, 501 Roanoke Drive, Birmingham, in behalf of the Tints and Tones Art Association of which she is president. The engraving will be shown in the association's art exhibit which will be held at new Royal Oak Public Library when it opens sometime in March.

PUZZLE NO. 744

If you want the ultimate in a valentine to make—you know who—happy the rest of her life, here's the answer. In magnificent Rudgate near Christ Church and Cranbrook. This is one of the finest Contemporary homes ever built.

A real wife-saver home is this Charing Cross Rambler. Close to new Birmingham grade school and walking distance to the commuter. Four bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths. G. E. color kitchen, large family room with fireplace and many, many special features such as automatic garage doors. A real good buy at $31,000.

FOR YOUR SPECIAL VALENTINE!

We hate this kind of gushy, over-commercial advertising, too, but for gosh sakes it is Valentine's Day. Please forgive us just this once.

Larger than it looks and one of the best designed homes we've seen, this delightful Cape Cod is right in town in a most congenial neighborhood. Two super bedrooms and bath up, and one bedroom on the first floor. Has lots of closet space and the living and dining areas are more than ample. Carpeting, draperies included at $21,500.
