Governor to Address Student Conference

Gov. George Romney will give the keynote address at a conference on student leadership he is sponsoring at Oakland University, April 22.

The affair, the first Governor's Conference on Student Leadership, will be attended by officers of clubs, government, council, and other organizations, and their counselors from scores of state high schools.

Its objective is to give students the knowledge and skills that will help make them more active and effective in civic affairs.

GOV. ROMNEY, in announcing it, said: "I am pleased to sponsor the conference. By offering high school students instruction in the practice, theory and philosophy of leadership, the university is helping provide the critical ingredient of our democracy; namely, individuals not only willing, but able, to discharge effectively their responsibilities as citizens. And there are but two obligations greater than those to our Creator and our family. And we cannot properly discharge these obligations without first discharging our obligations of citizenship. I am looking forward to meeting you at the conference."

IN HIS KEYNOTE speech, Gov. Romney will talk on the importance of the individual's civic responsibilities and of preparing youths to assume them.

The students will learn how to lead a meeting, parliamentary procedure, how to delegate responsibilities, the psychology of organizational leadership, the philosophy of democracy as an instrument of freedom and such practical details as how to get the support of one's followers.

Specialists in these fields from Michigan State University will be the speakers in lecture sections, after which the students will practice what they have learned by leading meetings.

DR. LOWELL EKLUND, director of Oakland's continuing education division, which is staging the conference, said that instruction in leadership for high school students has a very definite and continuing value. It has been shown, he said, that knowledge and ability in organizational leadership has a transfer to civic responsibilities later on. The student is not only more likely

Dance Tops Events at Cranbrook

In view of the sparsity of social events at Cranbrook this past week, one might think that it had been a quiet seven days.

But those who know best—the students themselves—know that it has not been so slow a week as it may seem.

For this past week all the little social events which are usually spread out over a longer period were compressed into three hours of concentrated fun. The big event was, of course, the annual "C" Club Dance.

The most notable aspect of the dance was the ingenuity of the costumes worn by the boys and girls. They were really receding-breaking in unique imagination.

IT MAY BE somewhat trite to say that this year's "C" Club dance was the greatest yet, but in the superlative spirit of Mardi Gras—theme of the dance—less can hardly be said.

Cranbrook's three foreign students—Roger Marsh from England, Abdullahi Al-Awadi from Arabia and Karsten Remmers from Germany—received their senior gifts on Monday, a surprise gift from the Cranbrook Senior class.

This gift is an annual tradition at Cranbrook, but its effect loses nothing from repetition.

YESTERDAY MORNING Cranbrook boys woke at the usual time—some perhaps slightly earlier—and ate breakfast in the usual manner—though a few may have hurried slightly.

They went to assembly in the normal fashion—possibly showing a little more energy than usual—and all listened to Mr. Hoy's words, though a few may have shown small signs of impatience.

They went to classes, which seemed about the same length as usual—though the classes were only 19 minutes long—and most paid due attention to their teachers, though a few seemed to daydream slightly.

Then, at 11:30 in the morning, a sudden quill fell upon the campus. It lasted for only a few moments, when suddenly there came a rumbling noise from within the academic buildings; the sound rose in volume quickly, and in a few seconds students began to burst from the doors, a few shouting frantically.

Was there a bomb in the Quadrangle? No. Was the boiler exploding? No. Twenty days or so ago, during a gasoline-powered Fordson tractor in 1917. This year is being observed as the 100th anniversary of Mr. Ford's birth.
