Behind The Store Fronts

What caused Mr. and Mrs. Al-fred LaBelle (of LaBelle's Books, Stationery and Gift Shop—137 W. Maple) to change their minds about selling?

"Well," Al LaBelle said, "Birmingham has always been very good to us. And, of course, there was a good deal of sentiment in connection with our decision to stay on. But we also felt a responsibility to continue our contribution (small as it may be) to the old-time Birmingham atmosphere."

The store opened for business Sept. 7, 1926—some 37 years ago. Mr. LaBelle recalls with a smile (now) that several book orders were shipped by mistake to Birmingham, Ala.

The public's response to LaBelle's change of mind has been a source of deep satisfaction. Customers' comments and many letters from friends and long-time customers expressed appreciation for LaBelle's long service to the community.

A typical quote would be "Birmingham would not be the same without LaBelle's!"

Sam Bell of Bell Greenhouses (928 S. Woodward) answered his phone a couple of weeks ago to hear the voice of a customer he hadn't seen in some time. "Sam," the woman said, "will you please save me 10 tickets for the Fred Waring show you Lions are putting on?"

"Where are you calling from?" Sam asked.

"Florida," the voice answered.

"The show goes on at 8:30 to-night in Groves High School auditorium, W. 13 Mile Road at Evergreen. Tickets are available at

A COMPLETELY remodeled greeting card department greets the customer at Mills Pharmacy. The large Hallmark area occupies the space formerly used by the lunch and soda fountains.

The Rolling Stone, Franklin's new gift shop, will open for business Monday, April 1.

Mr. and Mrs. De St. Nicolas, owners-operators of Leon Parisian Hairdressers Salon, 292 E. Brown, recently returned from four days at the annual New York International Hair Dressers Show. A number of stylists journeyed from several European countries to participate in the various competitions. The latest in high-fashion clothes, as well as hair styles, were shown.

What's new in hair styles? We wondered. "Well," Mrs. De St. Nicolas said, "hair is going to be shorter and more natural. Or, in other words, it will be closer to the head with a smoother look. And for dress-up occasions, more extra hair accessories will be used."

Leon's was established in 1930, making it one of the oldest—if not the oldest—beauty salons in Birmingham.
