Magnolias Brighten Our Spring Days

During this early spring cycle we have enjoyed the beauty of magnolias, and especially the light texture of the star magnolia. This is a choice specimen which we plant where it will have some shelter from the wind sweep during the winter months and sun half the day at least. It is especially welcome adjacent to a terrace or near a window where you can enjoy the beauty of the white flowers. Even though we have a severe winter, it seems to forgive the elements and give a good performance.

Student 'Corpsman' Helping Stop Grade School Dropouts

After just four weeks as a member of the Student Education Corps, 19-year-old Andrew Rogin is recharting his blueprint for life. The Michigan State University freshman spent most of last week talking about the Corps when he was back home at 1700 Middlebury, Bloomfield Township.

Before he joined the newly organized group of 110 MSU students and began working with school children in underprivileged neighborhoods, he had planned to become a lawyer.

ANDREW ROGIN

RIT ANDY'S clear-blue eyes are seeing the world differently now. Before that, he knew as well as any young Birmingham resident that poverty, ignorance and delinquency existed. But now he has seen firsthand what it does to little children. He understands why so many drop out of school and become unemployable.

And being a young man with compassion and feeling, Andy wants to do something to stop it. So do the other 109 members of the Student Education Corps. So does Dr. David Gottlieb, associate professor of sociology and education at MSU, who started the East Lansing version of the Peace Corps.

"DR. GOTTLIEB," Andy explained, "was appalled over the rate of school dropouts. He did a study on the high rate of dropouts in depressed areas."

The professor's main concern, said Andy, was with neighborhoods where Americans are socially displaced and economically helpless—neighborhoods which nurture the high rate of dropouts.

Dr. Gottlieb had an idea. To a large sociology lecture class, he proposed the Student Education Corps. It would be an experimental program to send student volunteers into classrooms. They would assist teachers by trying to help

Birney Gives Play
 Students at Birney Junior High School, Southfield, will present the play, "Cheaper by the Dozen," today and Friday at 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

FAIRLANE, THE FORMER HOME OF MRS. BURLINGAME to the University of Michigan, the home grounds are being restored (the Lumberton Oaks in Washington, D.C., under the guidance of Harvard University).

The beautiful home will be furnished and the grounds brought to their peak performance to provide a site for cultural conferences of interest to citizens living in southeastern Michigan as well as for meetings for leaders of many counties to convene for discussion of international issues. The latter use is expected to lead eventually to the publishing of the "Papers of Fairlane."

It is gratifying to see so many women in this area with the National Farm and Garden affiliation working toward this restoration which will make Fairlane an interationally known site and another attraction to focus eyes on the state of Michigan.

"AS WE are in the middle of the tulip season, I am sure you will be interested to know that the United States Public Health Service made a study of 13 years in which tulips had been eaten accidentally and the victims had not shown any ill effects.

"During World War II the Dutch ate their bulb supply when their backgrounds and environment which will help them do well in school. And when they get to school, no one has any extra time to give them."

He quoted Gov. Romney's statement that a state is only as good as its weakest link.

"Culturally, academically and morally, this is a weak link, and it comprises about 18 per cent of the state's citizens," Andy points out.

IN THE CLASSROOM, he says, teachers teaching children to say simple Spanish words. He and his associates feel especially helpful when they work with children who are falling behind in their reading skills (often a predecessor to discouragement and dropping out).

"WE may not be able to teach them much," says Andy, "but we can encourage instead of discourage. We can create an interest."

Meanwhile, the Student Education Corps has definitely created an interest in one MSU college freshman. Andy is now switching his field of study from pre-law. He plans to continue doing something about school dropouts by becoming an educator.

"I'M TOO SICK myself," said Grandma, "and I can't be bothered with somebody else's kids."

Says Andy, "That the trouble nobody wants to bother with half of these kids. They don't have the Schreiber of 3305 Burning Bush; and Stephanie DiGiovanni, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack A. DiGiovanni of 30725 Roberts Drive.

U. S. Citizens now own $45.5 billion in series E and H savings bonds. This represents nearly one-sixth of the national debt. Almost $1.3 billion of them had already been purchased in 1962 alone.

Secrets of Better Family Pictures Outdoors
 By Tom Mills

- Let people be themselves. Don't fine them up for a smiling, grimacing smile. The best pictures are of people doing things.
- Avoid the "squinting in the sun look." Move your subjects into soft, shadowless light where possible. Expressions will look more natural.
- Keep the background simple, so it won't detract from the people. Trees, grass, sand or a plain wall do nicely. Or, shoot up at your subject and let the sky be your background.
- Come in close to your subjects. Catch the eyes and the smiles and leave the scenery for another picture.
