Consider Coming Contest

Conferring on who should play what when for the "Combo Clash" Tuesday night in the Shain Park dome are members of some of the contesting groups and the directors of the event! Kneeling are Ben Mills (left) and Marshall Slocum. Standing behind them are (from left) Reed Slatkin, John Brewer, Denny Foley, Dud DeNador, Pete Draper, John Boyles, Gregg Dearth, F. Ward Ouradnik (chairman of Shain Park activities) and Bill Wizner (chairman of dome activities). The groups will compete for $50, $35 and $20 prizes. Judges will be local disc jockeys and other people professionally involved in the world of music.

Art Shows

HERE IS an opportunity to purchase original works of art, juried by an Art Market committee for quality, and "reasonably priced."

Most objects are under $100, and the average price is $50. There are paintings for up to $250, too, but you can also find something at the market for $10 or $15.

By Michigan artists, the wares include paintings of all kinds—oils, watercolor and collage — mixed media, etchings, weaving, ceramics, metalcrafts including jewelry, and sculpture.

Hours at the Birmingham Art Center, 1516 S. Cranbrook Road, Birmingham, are from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily through

Make-up Man Doubles In Musical's Chorus

The good bass voice of Robert B. Gilray will be heard in all chorus scenes of "High Cost" and he also will portray the make-up man in the Las Vegas scene.

Bob felt completely at home during rehearsals at the Village Players theater—he can recall appearing around the age of eight as a copy boy in a Players' show. His parents were members of the group at that time.

Bob regularly sings with the Christ Church Cranbrook choir. He lives at 31455 Southfield, Birmingham.
