Two Local College Students Follow Different Paths

Mary Jo Dumon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Dumon, 949 Chestnut, Birmingham, just completed her freshman year at Marygrove College in Detroit on a Ford Fund scholarship. She is particularly fond of French and is seen in the language lab, where she spends much time. She thinks she would like to make use of her knowledge of the language someday either through the Peace Corps or the Papal Volunteers in a French-speaking country.

Fortenbaugh, 2168 Yarmouth Road, Birmingham, and a student at Michigan State University, checks a light meter with Prof. Layton Mabrey, head of film production at MSU. The class in film making is part of the course in radio and television production, which is Fortenbaugh's field of con-

Potpourri

The international set of dancers performed a flock of folk numbers, led by Ted Brot of the University of Michigan Folk Dancers, and ably coached by Mrs. Edward Walter, 891 Brooklawn.

THERE'S MORE good news about dancing progress in the formation last year of the Creative Dance Workshop, Jessie (Mrs. Alex) Sinclair calls their membership '99 per cent dancing teachers.'

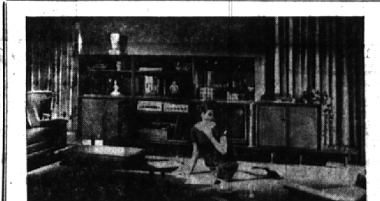

Their excellent performance at the dome Monday night was another poorly attended one, and it's discouraging. But their four imaginative dances were well-executed and offer an encouraging hope that our area now has the nucleus of a permanent group dedicated to the dance as an art form.

The dancers Monday, besides Jessie Sinclair, were Mia Anderson, Ada Bandaline, Shirley Duff, Hala Lawrence, Reva Usher, Pat Willing and Johna Harrington.

POTPOURRI POOL of reflections on the Arts Festival: After six years of it, festival-goers have emphatically demonstrated what they really like: light musical comedy, jazz festivals and rock and roll combos. (The latter two draw mobs of teen-agers, when priced in their budget range).

But people stay away in droves from programs of poetry readings, dance, symphony and serious drama. We hope the festival in future years will get more people out to enjoy all of the arts. The combo clash was great and we're glad kids mobbed it. Same goes for the musical and the adults. We just wish people would mob all of the programs.

Church Group Produces Play

"Melody Jones," a three act drama-comedy, will be produced June 29 by the Church of Jesus Christ of Later Day Saints. The performance is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. at Stake Center, 452 Woodward, Bloomfield Hills. There is no charge for admission.

THE PLAY IS by Ruth and Nathan Hall, modern playwrights. It is a story of a sixteen-year-old and her experiences in our modern world.

In the lead roll is Sharon Noye, a senior at Seaholm High School. Directing the play is Duane Thompson, a student of Will-O-Way presently living in Pontiac. The Detroit Stake M.I.A., social organization, will produce the play.
