

Broomfield to Choose Between Two Districts

Cong. William W. Broomfield (R-Royal Oak) surveyed the political scene in Oakland County last week.

He talked to constituents and supporters to help him decide in which of the county's two new congressional districts he will seek re-election next year.

Broomfield said he may have a decision by the first of September.

He is in his third term as the representative from the 18th congressional district (Oakland County). He now faces the decision to make a choice as a result of the state legislature's reapportionment.

Reapportionment was necessary to create the new 19th district received by the state after the 1960 census.

THE STATE legislature has now reduced the 18th district from its county-wide size to the county's southeastern corner; the area south of 20 Mile (South Blvd.). This put the rest of the county, along with Livingston County, into the new 19th district.

Broomfield's home is in Royal Oak, but he has the option of seeking re-election in either of the new districts.

During the course Lt. Cartwright received instruction in the duties and responsibilities of a newly commissioned armor officer.

The 25-year-old officer is a 1955 graduate of Cranbrook High School in Bloomfield Hills, received his B. A. degree in 1959 from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor and his LL. B. degree in 1962 from Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass.

Community College Issue Is Still Alive

The Oakland County Community College is still a live issue.

Meeting recently, the Oakland Schools Board of Education unanimously approved a resolution to place the community college question on the ballot in June 1964.

In addition the county school group requested the Citizens Advisory Committee on the community college to reconvene in the fall to place the question on the ballot in the campaign for the two-year institution.

Dr. William J. Emerson, superintendent of Oakland Schools, told the board he had received "all kinds of encouraging calls" since the June 10 vote.

THE COMMUNITY college idea was accepted in the June 10 election by a 2,000 majority, but an equal majority rejected a one-mill tax levy for support of the institution.

According to state law, if one of the proposals fails, both fail.

Board member Monroe M. Osmond of Pontiac said an early indication of the intentions of the

Here's Tuneful Tip

When you wish to remove a stubborn press-on knob from the radio or TV, just loop a twisted scrap of strong, soft cloth behind the knob, gripping the loose ends firmly in your fingers. Press against the cabinet front with your thumb tips, at the same time pulling firmly on the cloth. The knob should work free without damage to cabinet or knob.

This Man's Glad He Bent Over When He Did

Joseph Galbraith may be known as the man who bent over at the right time.

Galbraith was watering his lawn near his house at 1555 Rotel, Bloomfield Township, the other day; and his son Michael was mowing the lawn near the road.

A projectile suddenly flew off the power mower blade toward the house. At that same moment, Galbraith bent over.

He doesn't know why, but he's glad he did.

THE PROJECTILE—the metallic part of a bicycle pedal—flew over his head, slammed through a storm window and the inner window pane and imbedded itself in a wall in the living room.

Galbraith said he had just inspected the lawn, himself, but somehow missed the piece of metal.
