COAST GUARD UNIQUE
The United States is the only country in the world which maintains a Coast Guard service. Founded, originally, to prevent smuggling and to enforce customs laws, the U. S. Coast Guard now protects the entire American sea-coast, the Great Lakes, and all the navigable waters. It services the nation's light-houses, takes part in the International Ice Patrol and has many other functions as well. No other country in the world maintains a service in any way like it.
