

Reserve Duty

A far cry from law school are the construction duties of Birmingham Marine Air Reservist Phillip G. Ingraham while on two weeks of active duty in North Carolina that ends Sunday. Ingraham of 940 Harmon is normally a law student nights, a clerk in the Oakland County Courthouse days. In the Marines he is attached to a utilities section with Marine Air Group 46 which headquarters at the Naval Air Station, Grosse Ile. The unit is spending 15 days operating from a tent camp near Jacksonville, N. C. The duty includes rugged physical conditioning, 5:30 a.m. reveille and a physical readiness test.

Commercial Teachers' Class Planned

The Michigan State University graduate center at Oakland University will open a workshop in shorthand systems for commercial teachers Monday. The course will be taught by Miss Francis French, head of the commercial department in the Grosse Pointe public schools. Miss French recently returned from a shorthand institute at the University of North Dakota where changes in the diamond jubilee Gregg shorthand methods were examined.

School Principals Attend Workshop

Principals of elementary schools in Michigan and five neighboring states will have an opportunity to examine their professional functions in light of the most recent theory and practice at a workshop Aug. 5-16. The session, to be held at Camp Ketch, near Cadillac, is sponsored by the Michigan Education Association's Department of Elementary School Principals and the College of Education, Michigan State University. Enrollment is limited to 150 administrators.

Mrs. Romney Plans to Attend Evers Service

Gov. George Romney will be presented by his wife, Lenore, at a Medalier Evers memorial service in Detroit tomorrow. The governor said that a long-standing commitment to meet with the Michigan Association of Prosecuting Attorneys will make it impossible for him to attend the 8 p.m. service in the Second Baptist Church, 441 Monroe.

"I WOULD like to have my wife, Lenore, represent me to meet Mrs. Evers and offer a few remarks suitable for the occasion," Romney said. The service will be a tribute to Evers, a southern integration leader, who was killed this summer by a sniper.

County Thinks Big But Money Is Low

Oakland County, like many home-owners, has ambitious building plans, but there is only one hitch. No money. The county and its communities have planned more than $161 million of improvements that could be started in two years. However, most of them are stalled awaiting federal aid.

This was pointed up in a report of the Supervisors Inter-County Committee prepared to build public support for a bill before the House Public Works Committee to extend aid to municipalities.

AMONG the programs planned are the Bloomfield, Farmington and Waterford water systems; Troy and Walled Lake sanitary sewer systems, several storm drains, the Dequindre Interceptor, and expansion of the county service center.

Construction of the proposed county Children's Village, the Dequindre expansion and the sewer center will not be begun for several years, but many of the programs could start earlier, said Delos Hamlin, chairman of the board of supervisors.

County Thinks Big But Money Is Low

GERARD H. Coleman, executive director of the Supervisors Inter-County Committee, said that if all of the Oakland projects were begun at once they would provide work for almost 17,000 men for a year, working 40-hour weeks.

In the entire Detroit metropolitan area projects that will cost $1,294,231,892 are awaiting funds. That would employ 200,000 men for a year.

2 Wooster Students Honored for Grades

Two Birmingham students have won places on the dean's list at the College of Wooster, in Wooster, O. They are Virginia Keim, 1712 Winthrop; and Thomas Spierling, 1665 Birmingham Blvd.

The list is composed of students who had high scholastic averages in the spring semester. Dean Clark E. Bricker said the list was the largest in the history of the school including 34.9 per cent of the student body.
