Lodish-Marantette Vows Exchanged

Patricia Jane Marantette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Fitzgerald of Old Selma, Ct., Birmingham, walked up the aisle of Holy Name Church at noon Saturday to become the bride of Edward Michael Lodish, son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lodish of Detroit.

Msgr. Eugene E. Paddock officiated at the double ring ceremony, which was followed by a reception on the grounds of the Fitzgerald home.

Brunet Patricia was regal in bridal robes of ivory peau de soie fashioned with a scoop neckline, snug little bodice, traditional sleeves and a skirt which was slimly molded in the front but swept to back fullness extending into a chapel train. An intricate motif of Alencon lace and seed pearls accented both the front of the skirt and the bodice, the same tiny pearls trimming her pill box of illusion which secured a fingertip, bouffant veil. She carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of ivory roses and natural ivy.

Sandra Marantette was her sister's maid of honor, wearing for the occasion a floor-length gown of peacock blue silk organza over taffeta. Its straight-line simplicity was relieved only by a pannier falling from the neckline at the back and forming just the suggestion of a train. Petals of sheersat organza in variegated shades of blue, veiled in wisps of illusion, fashioned her tiny hat. She carried shell pink carnation with burgundy colored sweetheart roses and ivy.

Kevin Fitzgerald and Kathleen Marantette, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids, along with Anne Lodish, sister of the bridegroom, of Fremont, Calif., and Lurray Pfister of Birmingham.

They were dressed identically to Sandra except in periwinkle blue. Their only jewelry was a string of pearls, a gift from the bride.

Eight-year-old Kathleen Fitzgerald was her sister's flower girl, her Kate Greenaway frock of white organza designed like the others but sashed in periwinkle blue. She carried a matching miniature blue and white parasol, opened to contain burgundy rose petals.

Timothy Lodish was best man for his brother, and seating the guests were Michael DeMattia, Paul Messano, James Machlay, Robert Pieterzak, Thomas Bentley, Edward Nebel and Edward Kuznia, all of Detroit. Michael Gillard of Encino, Calif., a cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Mrs. Fitzgerald greeted her guests in a Dior blue gown of brocade fashioned along Empire lines, the bodice outlined by a tiny band of iridescent beading. A matching velvet pannier fell from the low back, and she wore a tiny, matching pill box trimmed in the beading used on her dress. She pinned cymbidium orchids to her bag. Mrs. Lodish was in ice blue brocade designed with a bell skirt and beaded bodice. Her flowers were also cymbidium orchids.

When the couple left on a wedding trip to Florida and Jamaica, the bride wore for traveling a royal blue sheath under a pale blue redingote lined in the royal blue. She wore a matching hat and white orchids.

The couple will be at home in Chicago after mid-October, the bridegroom planning to finish his senior year in medicine. M.E.M.
