

Zoning Still Unsettled At Wood Creek Farms

By NYTA HARB Special Writer
WOOD CREEK FARMS—Three major objections to sections of the new proposed zoning ordinance for Wood Creek Farms were brought before a public hearing Jan. 8. They necessitated a second public hearing on Jan. 29 at 8 p.m. at the Labourers Hall of the St. Vincent-Sarah Fisher home on Inkster Road.

A protest against the "restrictive zoning" of the outlots A, B, and C was voiced by developer G. W. Smith. Dissatisfied with the limitations of an "office" classification for these, Smith pressed for a "business" zoning on the North-western Highway frontage with a buffer area of offices towards the residential interior. He also asked for a revision of lot widths for outlot D.

Burglars Strike Twice in B'ham

Burglars struck twice in Birmingham early Wednesday morning.

Detective Lt. Meilin L. Holmquist said the front window of the Dimas Furs, 227 S. Woodward, was smashed shortly after 3 a.m. and two mink stoles valued at $1,650 were taken.

About 4:00 was taken from the Birmingham Landmark, 1000 S. Adams, early Wednesday.

Police said the theft was apparently small because entry was gained through a laundry chute in the front of the building.

ENSIGN SMALL attended the University of Illinois for a year before enlisting in the Navy. He became a Navy Cadet and received his wings in April, 1963.

Mrs. Small said her son is still in training and has been in the Pacific area since Dec. 22.

The Smalls also have two daughters, Barbara, 25, a medical records librarian at Pontiac General Hospital, and Susan, 20, a junior at the University of South Carolina.

Rescue Crew Sends SOS For Men

Birmingham's Civil Defense rescue crew needs help.
It needs men, according to Captain C. C. Nunneley of the Birmingham Fire Dept., who is in charge of the operation of the unit.

Nunneley and his men are starting a basic rescue training course on Jan. 29 and are looking for prospective pupils.

THE COURSE lasts 10 weeks and is held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. each Wednesday at Chesterfield Fire Station on W. Maple.

Those taking the training in addition to receiving regular instruction in rescue work will get two bonus classes not offered to volunteer workers.

"THE MICHIGAN Heart Association will conduct a closed chest heart massage demonstration and the Oakland County Medical Society has been asked to provide a physician to discuss emergency childbirth," Nunneley said.

He noted that these classes are usually reserved only for police and fire department personnel.

"Safety is the one big item we stress," Nunneley said.

"Safety in the home and at work are two of the most important subjects covered in the 10 weeks," he added.

NUNNELEY said there was a "definite need" for a group of trained rescue workers in Birmingham to help with situations that arise "whether they be natural or man-made disasters."

Last Sept. 14 the rescue unit was called into action by Bloomfield Township authorities to help free Mrs. Gertrude Bramley from under tons of debris when an explosion leveled the home of her son-in-law, Max H. Fruhauf.

Wheaton Campaign Names Local Leader

Mrs. Clifford Jack, of 4867 Quanton Road, Birmingham, has been named chairman of Wheaton College's annual campaign for the Wheaton Fund in this area.

In announcing the appointment, William C. H. Prentice, president of the 129-year-old liberal arts college for women in Norton, Mass., said chairman will form committees to lead the campaign and then make certain they function properly.

B'field Approves Charing Cross Road Improvement

Charing Cross road improvements will be underway by the spring of the year, thanks to the approval of $85,905 towards the estimated cost of $71,810 needed for the project by the Bloomfield Township Board at its meeting Monday night.

The board matched the funds allotted by the Oakland County Road Commission for resurfacing black top, curb and gutter.

The Board also approved recommendations to be sent to the state highway department for improvement of highway safety in the township.

AMONG THE recommendations were:

- Installation of a stoplight at Maple and Telegraph; change timing to provide a longer time for eastbound and westbound traffic to clear, and consideration of a left light turning signal there.

- Close the center island and the left turn intersection at Sandalwood and Telegraph.

- Close the left turn intersection at Fairlane and Telegraph.

- Install a stop sign at Cedarbrook and Telegraph.

- Install no left turn signs at Exeter and Telegraph, in front of the Township Hall at both drives and on Franklin Road for westbound traffic on Squares Lake Road.

- A request to the highway department to make a collision diagram map of all accidents occurring in the Township.

IN OTHER ACTIONS, the board voted to increase the building permit fees from 10 to 15 per cent, but rescinded the current permit to make up for the increase in costs.

The controversial rezoning request from Julius M. Rosenberg was tabled again by the board, "for further discussion." The issue concerns the rezoning of nine acres on E. Square Lake Road from a residential to a multiple zone.

• VOTED NOT to participate in Mayor's Day during Michigan Week this year. The city had previously drawn Freeport to exchange mayors with.

- Rejected requests from the Shell gas station and Fox and Hounds Restaurant for larger signs in front of their establishments.

- Approved renewal of Class C liquor licenses for the Kingsley Inn and Fox and Hounds.

- Tabled a suggestion by Commissioner David Lee that the speed limit be raised from 25 to 30 on Vaughan Road. Lee asked that his motion be tabled until he had a chance to talk with Vaughan residents.

Zoning Change Rejected by Commission

A request by the Birmingham Church of Christ to rezone a parcel of land in the Lincoln-Floyd area from single family to multiple family was rejected Monday night by city commissioners.

The rejection, however, did not rule out the possibility of future rezoning in the area.

Commissioners instructed City Planner William R. Brownfield to schedule a discussion on zoning in that area of town at the next joint meeting of the commission and the plan board.

Commissioner William E. Roberts said he would like to see some study on the "economic value" of the R-4 (two family) zoning classification.

HENRY M. Hogan, Jr., attorney for the church, said the area was not suited for two-family development and there was no longer a need for that type of zoning classification.

The church had originally purchased the land to build a new structure but since has moved to a new location.

Coffee, Doughnut Day Scheduled for March of Dimes

The Southfield March of Dimes will benefit from a Coffee and Doughnut Day with Jerry Ertso as host on Monday, Jan. 20, at his business place, Ertso Drugs, 15600 W. 10 Mile Road near Greenfield, in the New Orleans Mall, Southfield.

As Oakland County campaign chairman, Al Kalline, in confirming the party date, said he was sorry he would be unable to be there.

Ertso invites area residents to take their coffee breaks that day and evening at his fountain snack bar and to donate as generously as possible to the local March of Dimes for their coffee and doughnuts. This will be the third year he has contributed in this manner to the National Foundation March of Dimes to help its expanded program of research and medical care in birth defects and rheumatoid arthritis, now crippling small children as polio once did.

Home Rule Act In Final Stages

The home rule enabling act is getting its final touches as the governor's study committee on Saturday before its presentation to Gov. Romney within a few days.

Confident of a state legislature approval, committee member Delos Hamlin said that the committee's proposal will be different from any of those presented at public hearings by various groups interested in county home rule.

THE BILL WILL NOT give any county home rule, but would enable county voters to decide whether they want to change their form of local government. This would enable the proposal to work in all counties interested in changes.

Hamlin said that the proposed act will be revealed publicly after its presentation to the Governor.

YOUR GARDEN CENTER SNOW - BIRDS

WEATHER FORECAST (GIVE OR TAKE A FEW DAYS, A BIT OF SNOW, SUNSHINE, OR RAIN).
JAN. 12th to 21st—COOLER, UNSETTLED.
JAN. 22th to 25th—STORMY; MUCH COLDER.

BIRDS:—
Better than flowers in some cases as they last all year; no cultivating, no pruning, no staking, no spraying. Just feed them and give them reasonable cat & dog protection.

TIPS & TIDBITS
Feed any and all comers. Don't try to be selective.
Have water available if possible. Use a water warmer.
More species NOW WINTER in the north BECAUSE they are fed.
Suet is excellent food and even better when mixed with various seeds. (No suet after March as the babies may become sick).
Keep them in your yard all summer. Many birds eat their weight every day in insects.
In winter, the nuthatch, tufted titmouse, downy & hairy woodpeckers will clean almost all nuts, larvae, red spiders, etc., from a large tree. They EAT these things!
One hundred tent caterpillars is one meal for a cuckoo.
Orange slices tempt orioles, thrashers, bluebirds, and cardinals. They also like over-ripe fruit such as bananas, grapefruit, etc.
DO NOT interrupt the feeding. This is a dirty trick and harmful to the birds.
Be sure there are trees or shrubs close by as the birds need an escape hatch from their natural enemies.
Birds are NOT constructed like people, thank heaven. You don't have to curl your toes around a bedpost to keep from falling out, but the bird does, and he can't let go until he wakes up.

SNOW:—
which readily turns to ice, as you must have noticed lately, can be removed with modern snow shovels & snow-pushers. They are almost the same as they were 20 years ago. O.K., 50 years ago.
The EASIEST method, however, is to sprinkle the ice with small pellets called X-2!
