Driver Held On Charge of Manslaughter

The driver of a car which crashed and killed a 14-year-old Pontiac girl and critically injured a 16-year-old boy in Bloomfield Hills Sunday must face examination Tuesday on charges of manslaughter.

Dennis R. Thomas, 17, of Pontiac, will appear before Bloomfield Township Justice of the Peace Alice Gilbert.

Police said Thomas was the driver of a car that ricocheted across Woodward into a tree north of Long Lake Road. The girl, Lavonne Williams, was dead on arrival at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac.

DAVID WHITE, 16, also of Pontiac, was critically injured in the crash. He was taken to the same hospital.

Assistant Prosecutor David F. Brock said Thomas refused to give a statement, but that witnesses said the youth was speeding.

Thomas and two other teenagers were treated for minor injuries and released from the hospital.

Police said the driver and four passengers were thrown from the car after it struck a curb in front of City and Country School, crossed the pathway, traveled through some bushes and hit a pine tree.

The car skidded about 150 feet, police said.

to recommend areas in which such clubs are needed.

A REPORT from high school and junior high principals as to their enforcement of the law within the schools was requested by Dr. Charles Bowen.

Johnson told the board: "To say we have no illegal club memberships would be erroneous."

He added, however, that the difficulty in enforcing the law lay in proving a student's membership, since illegal organizations operated underground.

He said he has had several recent requests from school patrons asking that more be done about the problem.

MRS. JEAN MARTZ, a board member, said the fact that the state law was unrealistic in holding school boards responsible for enforcement of the law.

"But as long as the law exists, we must try to enforce it," she added.

Lathrup Council Eyes Changes in Charter

LATHRUP—Although the council has suggested 11 changes in the city's charter, it is doubtful that all will be on the ballot in the spring.

City Attorney Everett Hayes said Monday night that he probably could get "two or three" charter amendments ready for the April 6 election.

Hayes was instructed to consider as top priority, changes in Chapter 4 of the charter which deals with elections.

THERE ARE four proposed changes in this chapter. They would:

- Change the election date to the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November on the even-numbered years.
- Double the term of office of councilmen to two and four years and check the reason for starting the term of office for justice of the peace on July 4.
- Change the dates of nominations to coincide with the fall elections.

• CHANGE THE Board of Censors to coincide with the recently adopted Act No. 65. (This act provides that there be two Democrats and two Republicans on the board.)

All the proposed amendments are designed to bring the charter in line with the state's new constitution and recent legislation.

The council also discussed plans to purchase 9 1/2 acres of land for a municipal building site. The property now under consideration would

However, the new ordinance sets up requirements for traffic ingress, egress and parking, and requires that the plans be reviewed and approved by the Bloomfield Hills Board of Appeals.

Similar requirements are established for clubs and convalescent homes.

In general, the Board of Appeals is given much more authority to review and decide on non-residential building proposals under the new ordinance than the old.

• THE PROPOSED new ordinance provides more strict regulation of certain commercial operations such as filling stations. For example, all merchandise must be stored within buildings.

• In the case of multiple-dwellings or apartments, the old ordinance required that some portion of each apartment be on the ground floor, and it permitted only four dwellings in a building.

The new ordinance permits nine dwellings in a building and eliminates the requirement that some portion of each apartment be on the ground floor. These changes allow more flexibility in designing apartment buildings, with resulting benefits to both the owners and tenants.

Two proposed changes—supported by Commissioners Lee, Breeford and Colombo and opposed by Commissioner Woolfenden and Mayor Craig—are as follows:

• THE EXISTING ordinance limits the density of population in multiple dwellings to 3 families per acre. The proposed ordinance will permit 4.5 families per acre.

• The old ordinance limits the height of multiple dwellings to 2 stories at the eaves, plus basement. It does not limit the height of the roof above the eaves or ground, nor does it specify how much of the basement must be below grade.

The proposed ordinance retains a similar basic restriction of 2 stories, limits the over-all height to 30 feet, and requires that at least half of the basement must be below grade.

In addition, the proposed ordinance permits 3 story Town Houses when the Board of Appeals finds that the following conditions will be met:

- THE HEIGHT above grade is no more than 35 feet (vs. 30 feet for other apartments).
- The buildings are set back from the building line (vs. 60 feet for other apartments).
- The site is at least 5 acres in Zoneing has to be justified under the police power. We are using the force of the police power of the community of the state to tell people you can't do such-and-so with your land.

We are interfering with the free use of land when we make zoning regulations. That's why the courts have been so strict in their criticism of zoning and that is why they have adopted the rule that you cannot use zoning for the purpose of esthetics.

area and located on a major or secondary thoroughfare.

The limitation of nine families per building that applies to 1- or 2-story apartment houses does not apply to Town Houses. The size of Town House buildings will be limited by the restrictions on building height and families per acre, and by the severe set-back requirements, say proponents of the plan.
