Yamasaki's Architecture Soars to "Great Heights"

This great project, the tallest building in the city and one of the highest in the world, is truly a remarkable achievement. The project, a 100-story skyscraper, will be completed within the next two years. The building will stand 1,500 feet tall, making it the tallest structure in the world. The design is a testament to the ingenuity and creativity of architects and engineers. The building will serve as an iconic landmark, symbolizing the city's greatness and progress.

Next Steps

1. Continue construction of the structure
2. Install elevators and other necessary equipment
3. Begin landscaping around the building
4. Prepare for the grand opening ceremony

World Trade Center has twin towers of glowing metal that will be the tallest buildings in the world. They will rise 1,492 feet, above a great open space of almost five acres on the lower west side of Manhattan overlooking the East River. Plans were announced last week by The Port of New York Authority.
