

Response Promises Large Turnout for Barnum Program

PTA planners at Barnum Junior High already have assurance that their special program on learning should be well received next Thursday evening at the school.

More than 20 prominent educators have accepted the PTA's invitation to serve as discussion group experts for the program called "Learning to Learn" and Barnum Principal Roy E. Vannette calls the response of parents "the most enthusiastic I've ever seen."

Barnum students, will get the most out of "Learning to Learn."

Keynote speaker for the Barnum program will be Dr. Morton Botz, assistant superintendent of schools in Bucks County, Pa. Educators from the Birmingham area who will be participating include:

DR. JOHN Blackhall Smith, superintendent of schools; Daniel Nesbitt, deputy superintendent; Dr. George Hallock, director of pupil services, Birmingham public schools; Dr. Watson S. Kenison, psychiatric consultant; John Molloy, school psychologist; and Peter Drees, coordinator of mathematics.

Others are Mrs. Louise Couture, coordinator of foreign languages; Miss Jane Parker Ward, instructor and former librarian at Barnum Junior High; Rev. Jack W. Angerman, minister of education, First Presbyterian Church; and Miss Marjorie Sallie, headmistress of Bloomfield County Day School.

Oakland County educators who will take part in "Learning to Learn" are Dr. Harry T. Hahn, director of instruction; Dr. Myles M. Platt, director of social studies; and Dr. David Wells, director of mathematics.

REPRESENTING various Michigan colleges and universities next Thursday evening at Barnum will be Dr. Paul D. Carter, professor of education, University of Michigan; Richard D. Elder, assistant professor of education, Eastern Michigan University; and Dr. L. J. Hetenyi, director of teacher education, Oakland University.

Others are Allan D. Jacobs, instructor in education, Wayne State University; Dr. David Makinson, assistant professor of social studies education, Wayne State University; Dr. Donald E. P. Smith, associate professor and chief of reading services, University of Michigan and Dr. John E. Tirrell, president of Oakland Community College.

Other guest educators include Anthony Witham, assistant superintendent of schools, Monroe; Mrs. Carl Wonnberger, assistant professor of English, Detroit Institute of Technology; and Dr. H. C. Hickman, vice-president of Jerome George & Co., Detroit.

ALSO INCLUDED will be George R. Mosher, Jr., former instructor in law at New York University, now on the legal staff at General Motors Corp.; G. P. O'Connell, public relations staff, General Motors Corp.; and Dr. Alexander Semerville, supervisory engineer, Isotope Laboratory, General Motors Technical Center.

"Learning to Learn," which appropriately falls in the middle of National Education Week, is a unique PTA program idea, presented for the first time in Birmingham and perhaps it marks a first in Michigan as well. The program opens at 8 p.m. Nov. 12 in the Barnum auditorium.

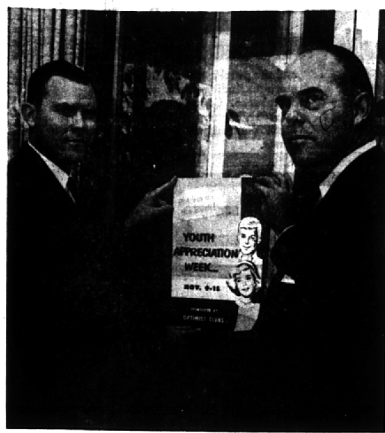

FRANKLIN FRESHMAN John Hamilton Spomer, 175 Hillboro, has completed registration and started classes at Franklin College in Indiana. John, as a member of the Franklin class of 1968, will be studying for two years in the college's liberal studies program.

Finneran to Head Plymouth Account

The appointment of John P. Finneran as account supervisor of agency services on the Plymouth account has been announced by Louis T. Hacopian, vice president and Detroit manager of N. W. Ayer & Son, Inc.

Finneran, 1811 Haddington Drive, Bloomfield Hills, will head a group of account executives responsible for advertising, merchandising, and sales promotion materials for the Plymouth Ford, Belvedere, Valiant, and Barracuda automobiles.

Three of Four U-M Students State Residents

Where do all the young people flooding the college campus come from?

The answer for The University of Michigan is that most of them come from cities, towns, villages and farms throughout the state of Michigan. Total enrollment for the current fall term, as recently announced, is 29,103, and about 73 per cent of them, or 21,205, are Michigan residents.

Though analysis of this year's enrollment is not complete, it is not expected to differ greatly, so far as geographic origins of students are concerned, from that of a year ago.

A statistical breakdown of that enrollment showed that every county in Michigan was represented in the student body. Not surprisingly, the counties with the largest population also supplied the largest numbers of students.

IN THE last census year, eight counties—Ingham, Jackson, Lenawee, Livingston, Monroe, Oakland, Washtenaw, and Wayne—had 52 per cent of Michigan's population. Those same counties were home to 59 per cent of last year's enrollment at the U-M.

Other counties contributing from 50 to 1,400 students each were: Allegan (65), Alpena (65), Bay (199), Berrien (239), Calhoun (273), Charlevoix (160), Hillsdale (54), Kalamazoo (242), Kent (798), Lapeer (58), Macomb (464), Marquette (55), Midland (195), Muskegon (269), Ottawa (207), Saginaw (298), St. Clair (160), St. Joseph (73), Shiawassee (80), Tuscola (51), and Van Buren (22).
