Suggest Roadside Coffee Shops to Curb Accidents

Ideas for cutting down motorist fatigue and thus reducing road minhaps pour into the State Highway Department and other offices in Lanning by the dozens.
One recurring suggestion over the last several years has recently been repeated by one Michigan man with authority to help put such ideas into effect.
State Rep. Edward K. Michalski, Detroit Democrat, has renewed the proposal to provide roadside coffee shops at every highway rest area.

ahops at every highway rest area.

THIS SUGGESTION has been answered time and time again by state officials. They say it would be impossible on the freeway routes because Federal regulations prohibit commercial development on the roadsides.

Michalski contends state-owned, privately operated coffee shops on the super highways would break the monotony of driving, provide respite for passengers, and open new job opportunities for unskilled workers.

areas where a motorist could drive up an exit ramp to the coffee shop and just across the road to the entrance ramp with a minimum of interruption to his trip.

Extensive encouragement to private businesses to locate eating facilities immediately adjacent to exit ramps might be advisable as a means of keeping the state out of the restaurant business.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENT RATES

Was not the only area of safety which took a turn for the worse this year.
