

New Face in Town

Shain's Drug Store, a familiar landmark in Birmingham since 1906, began the first phase of its complete "change of face" last week with the removal of its sign. The building will house the second store of Sherman Shoes, which already has facilities at 115 W. Maple. New owner Fred Sherman said that the firm will completely remodel and expand the store as the second location. Shain's went out of business early this spring.

Electronic Brain to Aid Traffic Safety Officials

Michigan's war against traffic accidents, being waged on many fronts, has a new recruit ready to spring into action around the first of the year... an electronic genius weighing 4-tons and able to store several billion isolated pieces of information in its brain center... the GE-415 Computer.

The new computer which costs nearly a half-million dollars will provide an automated system of keeping driver records... especially on problem drivers, Secretary of State James H. Hare said in announcing the acquisition which will be housed and operated by the Department of State.

Hare said he expected the computer would be installed this January in a newly established processing center in his department. In addition to handling the traffic safety program and other data processing of the Secretary of State, it will also serve the Commission on Traffic Safety Center at Michigan State University, and other universities and organizations studying safety problems.

According to Hare, computer-produced statistics will be made available to the State Safety Commission, the National Safety Council, the Traffic Safety Center at Michigan State University, and other universities and organizations studying safety problems.

Currently, the Secretary of State's department maintains files on nearly five million Michigan drivers. And although only from seven to 10 per cent of the total motorist force comprises the category known as "problem drivers," the data in the files of these drivers comprises about 20 per cent of the entire total.

"To start out with, the state will put only the problem driver file on the computer. But later on, we may be able to convert our entire file on the computer," Hare said.

The state's files include such information as the driver's age, height, weight, birthdate, all past convictions, accident reports, suspensions, driver education records, restrictions, and pertinent medical data.
