

Cornell Group Is Feted at Woolson Home

Festivities at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Irving Woolson, 715 Glenway, Bloomfield Hills, were a climax to a recent week devoted to higher education by the Woolsons and the Cornell Secondary School Committee of Michigan.

Woolson, former vice president of Chrysler Corp., has been active in Cornell affairs as a member of the University Council and the Engineering Council.

A representative from Cornell, Stanley W. Davis, dean of students, and David E. Spalding, local architect, were ready to discuss special requirements for acceptance at Cornell as well as general advantages.

At Cranbrook they lunched with Robert M. Sandoe, headmaster; Robert E. Kenny, counselor; and John Abthick of the tractor division of Ford Motor Co. At Seaborn they talked with Donald Grodler, chief counselor, and William Lewing, district representative of Bloomfield Hills High with Mrs. Mary White, head counselor; and at Kineswood with Grace Frye, chief counselor, and Marilyn Mackenzie of World Book Publishers.

MRS. DALE DOEHR of Walnut Lake, took time out from her studies toward a doctorate in chemistry at Wayne State University to accompany Spalding and Davis to Mumford High and Cass Tech.

Dean Davis was treated to dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Abthick, 245 Guilford, Bloomfield Hills.

Others present at the general meeting were Mrs. Murray G. Hulse of Bloomfield Hills; Mr. and Mrs. Jerome T. Bull, Birmingham; Peter Herbie, formerly of Birmingham, now of Grosse Pointe, and his neighbor Burkhardt Schneider; Dr. Florence Randolph and Richard Landrock of Detroit; Frank Nitzberg of Pleasant Ridge; and Mrs. William B. Boardmore of Rochester.

Show Newsman

the Princeton Club of Michigan who will be working with Williams are William W. Stewart, 3810 Brookside, tickets; Curtis W. Poole, 12180 Riverside, legal; and also on publicity, David W. Raymond, 3550 Roland Drive; Bruce Ocko, 32901 Auburn; and Paul L. Penfield, 792 Lakeside.

THE SHOW will be presented in 15 cities around the country during the holiday season. The Detroit performance is open to the public.

In keeping with Triangle Club tradition, "Grape Expectations" is a musical comedy combining campus talent with collegiate humor. The show this year centers around a group of monks faced with overdue rent on their World's Fair Pavilion.

TICKETS for the show are on sale at Grinnell's. Following the performance there will be a subscription dance at the University Club.

Members of the executive committee for the Triangle Club's Michigan chapter include Andrew W. Barr, class of '27, president of Price-Waterhouse; Henry T. Bodman, class of '28, president of the Detroit National Bank.

Emory M. Ford, class of '28, president of Wyandotte Chemical; and Alfred R. Glancy, Jr., class of '32, promoter and builder.

ABEL CALLED Russian-Chinese-U.S. relations a "fascinating triangle."

"When the United States and Russia get together, Chinese relations worsen."

The newsman predicted that Russia will turn more sharply against the U.S. within the next year. Their new leaders will attempt a more dogmatic approach to policy as they will be without assurance and a sense of authority so as to follow the well-trodden path.

"A tip-off to their U.S. policy will come when they decide on their economic budget in January," said Abel.

"Khrushchev felt it was safe and necessary to hold back defense spending and increase light industry and consumer goods, so he rammed through military cuts. Russian generals thought this unsafe."

"IF THEIR NEW budget shows more heavy industry, then you know the marshals have won the battle over the bureaucrats."

Preceding a luncheon at the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club, Abel said that deciphering news from Russia was like working a puzzle.

"We don't have access to intelligence reports, so we have to do between the lines on what they do give us. It's like detective work and reporters are called Kremlin watchers."

Abel covered a wide range of subjects in the question-and-answer session following the luncheon. Capsule comments included:

- U. S. defense spending—"We will follow Russia's lead, and Russia knows it."

- THE KENNEDY'S city and area planning projects—"We can't expect great innovations by President Johnson, but he will follow through without the drive and flair that the former president and his wife gave it. Mr. Kennedy was at home with writers and artists, while Mr. Johnson prefers the company of politicians."

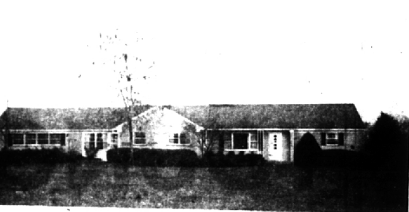

- Castro—"He will only be overthrown by Cubans in Cuba and not by us. The main trouble is that the Cuban exiles are not united."
- Hungarian Revolt—"One of the few times in my life that I was ashamed to be an American. Congress was pledged to the liberation of Eastern Europe, and it did American prestige much harm. There won't be another Hungarian revolt."

- SOUTH VIETNAM—"Going from bad to worse. What we are doing now is insufficient to halt this rot. It's hard for us coming into this situation, which is going downhill, because the local people haven't made enough of an effort."
- Quebec's secession—"The only thing that's made Canada a nation is Quebec," said Abel, who was born in Montreal.
