Man Landscape Changes Its Face As Fall Foliage Is Displaced

German art there was, particularly around 1900. There was a lull during the Hitler period, 1930-45, when almost nothing was produced...

Over the years we have experienced Michigan's North Woods country in its many guises. However, last week, "Wallon in November" was a "first" for me...

Song

On practical knowledge. Their naïveté is a target for the people and situations which confront them.

INTO THEIR lives enter a cast of relatives who willy-nilly, or out of a sense of obligation, take the boy into their lives...

ANOTHER WHO helps him in his quest for knowledgeable manhood is Miss Greville...

Other characters who enrich his life are Maggie, who gives friendship and protection to him...

PSONG OF Silence is strongly reminiscent of Dickens and Laurie of Oliver Twist, particularly in such scenes when he asks Mrs. Main if he may have butter on his bread...

HERE IS the same sentimentality for lowly people, too. All the characters who contribute to Laurie's growth are themselves poor...

Now on every turn the familiar landscape was displaced by one strangely unfamiliar. For when autumn rolls the trees of their concealing foliage, the contours of the land are surprisingly revealed...

It is beyond our poor powers to completely discourage our visitors who, too, must have their winter sanctuary. But we are impatient to see what's going on outside...

WORKMEN BUSY about the cottage which has housed four generations of summer living saw a large buck cross the lane on the morning of our visit...

but somewhat conservative gentleman, said in his most recent collection of sketches and essays, "If You Don't Mind My Saying So..."

LARNER obviously has, he is 27, has written of the sit-in movement, the New York City school system, rock and roll music and drug addiction, in published articles.

He has given each his active attention and concern. His first novel "Drive, He Said" has been chosen first Delta Phi winner by Mary McCarthy, Walter van Tilburg, and Leslie Fiedler.

IF infested trees was covered white as if strewn with spilled flour. THE WOODS were seemingly empty of birds, but along the roadside there were an unusual number of hawks perched on trees or flying low, seeking to destroy some hapless meadow mouse busy making her winter tunnels in the dead meadow grasses...

far look. Minus docks and boats, its beach divested of all the trappings of Homo sapiens, it rested undisturbed like a glistening bowl nestled within its rim of gentle hills.

THE LOCK responds to the turn of an impatient hand. The familiar rooms have an aroma of their own, compounded of such things as wood smoke, drying fungus plants and mosses, tooth balls and old books.

SEED PODS and berries are everywhere. We especially enjoyed the grey plummy clusters of wild clematis, decorating one of the most interesting of our trailing vines...

HERE AND THERE we came across clumps of witch-hazel, our only autumn-blooming shrub whose flowers with their yellow stamens and red buds are always a surprise.

On occasion we have seen them so abundant that the ground underneath was covered white as if strewn with spilled flour.

On the freeway just opposite the Hartwick Pines, we spotted a single deer, his summer coat already grayed to blend with the stumpled where he was grazing.

BRIDGE in BIRMINGHAM

By BUD MAYBAUM Southern Michigan Bridge Association

My hand for today was recently played at the Birmingham YMCA and found most North and South pairs in a difficult position.

North and South Vulnerable: Dealer: South

Table with columns NORTH (Al Bottler) and WEST EAST, showing card counts and bids.

The bidding: SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST 2 pass 3 pass 4 NT pass 5 pass 7 all pass.

Opening lead: J of clubs. When Al made his first bid of three hearts, trump was decided and subsequent bidding was for the purpose of determining a small slam or big slam.

On Friday evening, we will hold the annual charity bridge tournament at the Community House, Birmingham. These boards will be duplicated all over the country.

ALL THE supporting roles were excellent. Woody Henry as the romantic, faithful neighbor constantly added dimension to the play.

Members of the Repertory Company of Wayne State University's Hillberry Classic Theatre meet with the boss, Dr. Clarence B. Hillberry, president of the university, for whom the theatre was named. At left is Pat Criner of Detroit; in the center, David L. Meneghel, 1388 Ruffner, Birmingham. Mrs. Criner, a graduate student, joins her husband, John, in the company. Meneghel was in the original company which launched the theatre last season. He formerly taught at Seaholm High School. The theatre's second season will open Jan. 6.
