

Psychiatrist Cites Day-Care Program Need

The need for a day-care program to help the emotionally handicapped child was cited by Dr. James M. McHugh when he spoke at a recent meeting of the Foundation for Emotionally Disturbed Children.

Dr. McHugh, 32205 Eastlady Drive, Birmingham, led a committee which studied the psychiatric hospital situation in Michigan.

Overcrowding was the biggest handicap, Dr. McHugh pointed out, and the day-care program, which would utilize a school atmosphere directed by professionally-trained personnel, would help alleviate the problem.

Members of the Foundation have asked that the day-care program be initiated at Pontiac State Hospital.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

Expect Many New Faces In '65 State Legislature

By ELMER E. WHITE

Michigan Press Association
Even seasoned observers of the State Capitol arena will need a scorecard to tell the players in next year's legislative game.

This will be especially true in the state senate, which had a considerably high turnover in the past four years. Now many of the relatively new members of the upper chamber are setting their sights on higher goals.

The creation of an appellate court in the new Constitution is drawing the eyes of at least two senators who have already announced their interest in one of the nine seats still to be set down in districts.

NEW CONGRESSIONAL districts also are a big drawing card. At least four and possibly more senators are viewing a job in the Washington House.

Three others are known to be either retiring or seeking a higher state office.

To have nine potential vacancies this early in an election year, when petition filing is still months away, is a rarity but perhaps a sign of the times. Political campaigns seem to begin earlier each successive election year.

HOUSE CHANGES also will be many, but this figure is less firm because fewer members in that body have committed themselves. One element in the House, however, will cause an automatic drop out of at least a dozen members. The new Constitution prohibits a legislator to be on the payroll of another governmental unit. House membership includes several school teachers, and a number of other city, township and county officers who must this year choose which public office they wish to maintain.

The possibility of new districts in the state legislature also could open the door for major fights for these positions and the loss of still other incumbents.

EDUCATORS VIEWED Gov. George Romney's budget request in their area with relative optimism, but will be keeping an especially keen eye on the legislature this year where appropriations are concerned.

Romney's recommendation came closer to the higher education requests than any previous budget proposal.

The special interest in budgeted funds comes as the result of federal action on the $1.2 billion aid to education bill. The Congress provided a one-third matching system, local or private funds must supplement the federal aid.

THE CONCERN of Michigan's various colleges and universities was summed up well by John G. McKevitt, business and financial officer for the University of Michigan.

"It remains to be seen whether the Legislature provides the funds necessary to attract the federal grants over and above current appropriations, or whether it considers the federal contributions as an excuse for cutting back on state monies," he said.

Best estimates are that Michigan's more than 30 four-year institutions could share $8 or $10 million a year under the aid to education program, if homebased funds were available.

IF SPEED KILLS, as has often been said, a statistical survey by the State Highway Department would indicate the roadway slaughter will continue on the rise.

In the past 13 years, the average speed on Michigan highways has increased from 48 miles per hour to 56.9 miles per hour. The survey shows Michigan's average speed has been increasing every year since 1950. In 1963 the average jumped nearly one mile per hour from 56.1 to 56.9 miles per hour.

This average, however, includes all vehicles. Buses rank nearly as high as passenger cars in average speeds, but trucks travel at a considerably lower pace, with just less than a 50 miles per hour average.

THE AVERAGE is pulled up sharply by passenger cars, at about 58.4 miles per hour, and buses at 55 miles per hour in the 1963 study. The "fast" drive category is also on the upswing, the survey showed. The percentage of all vehicles which exceeded 55 miles per hour last year was 20.5 per cent as compared to 15.8 per cent the previous year.

Michigan's speed survey is not designed to draw conclusions about the total effect of motor vehicle speed, but rather to indicate the trend of travel in the state.

Department officials conduct the survey with radar machines set up at 25 daytime and 10 nighttime locations, using the same spots each year to eliminate variables in the test.
