

State Plans Full Agenda At New York World's Fair

BY ELMER E. WHITE
Michigan Press Association

Proclaimed as a never-to-be-duplicated extravaganza, the 1964-65 World's Fair at New York will have a substantial contribution from Michigan.

In addition to the major display units being constructed by Michigan firms, probably most notably the auto companies, the special state participation will be timely.

"Michigan Day" at the World's Fair will be the first day of "Michigan Week" here. For the first time, the annual state promotion will have a national exposure. Ralph Swan, who has been associated with economic development projects and Michigan Week events for several years, is spearheading the "Michigan Day" plans.

BREAKFAST FOR alumni of the University of Michigan and Michigan State University will start the activities in New York May 18. Graduates of other Michigan colleges and actually every former Michigan resident in the New York area on that date will have an opportunity to attend the sessions.

Later that day Gov. George Romney will lead a delegation of an estimated 300 state government, business and industry leaders attending the Fair on Michigan Day.

With transportation facilities very convenient from many Michigan cities to New York, thousands of state residents are already planning trips to the World's Fair. State planners are hoping many of them will be on hand May 18 for the official tribute to Michigan.

STATISTICS CAN BE deceiving, but a careful look at complete sets of records usually can give the full picture.

The traffic fatality toll for 1963, for example, indicated that at least 1,867 persons died. This was just a provisional total, however, and state police are now estimating the count will be closer to 1,900 when the last delayed reports are made to East Lansing.

This is far from the whole story on roadway tragedies. The full picture can only be seen by taking into consideration the total number of accidents, injuries and dollar losses.

A STAGGERING $340 million is the cost figure placed on 1963 Michigan traffic accidents by the National Safety Council.

This is based on a complicated formula including property damage, medical expenses, insurance costs and loss of wages.

The total of 287,694 accidents were reported during the period. Nearly half of the accidents resulted in personal injuries. Claims paid the injury total of 123,749 was the worst on record for a 12-month period.

AN INNOVATION in conservation work may be seen within the next year or two. It could provide new avenues of recreation for a group of 21 seniors led by Sen. William G. Milliken, R-Traverse City, has sponsored a measure to create a state system of horse trails and hiking networks. This idea originally came forth nearly two years ago in a report of a private organization, the Michigan Natural Resources Council.

DUTIES OF setting up the two systems would be held by the State Conservation Department and a special riding and hiking trails advisory committee.

Under Milliken's bill, a survey would be required to determine the available routes, develop a master plan and put the plan into effect. The advisory committee proposal should meet previous objections relating to conservation matters in the state.

The proposal called for the Conservation Director to appoint a seven member committee with two of the members from each of three districts: The Upper Peninsula, Northern Lower Michigan and Southern Lower Michigan would have regional members on the committee and the seventh person would be named on an at-large basis.

CAMP SITES are referred to in Milliken's measure but it would be left up to the committee and Conservation Department the extent to which such facilities would be included with the trails system.

Conservationists view the possibilities for development of this new system as tremendous. With a minimum purchase of land throughout the state many more scenic spots not now accessible by cars would be brought close to the tourist.

Horseback riding, once considered on the wane because of the urbanization of the state, could be revitalized greatly by facilities for its enthusiasts.

Society Dept. deadline for all organizational news, news items and engagements announcement is 5 p.m. on the Friday preceding Thursday publication.

Community College Topic of Professor At Eastover PTO

A community college provides the most economical answer to educating the increased number of youngsters who will be graduating from high school in June, 1964 and thereafter, Paul D. Carter of the University of Michigan Dearborn Campus told members of the Eastover School P.T.O. on March 2.

Meeting at Eastover School, the group was briefed on the Oakland County Community College proposal which will be a major item on the June 8 annual school election ballot.

The graduating classes of Oakland County high schools will have 3,000 more young people in the next year, Carter said. The classes of '66 and '67 will be even larger.

In 18 community college districts

Walker, 39, will succeed Willard E. Smith, who is retiring next week.

Walker has been the assistant district bridge engineer for the past five years. The Pontiac district includes Oakland, Macomb and St. Clair counties.

In Michigan, both students and the community find that the two year institutions close to home is a workable solution to the problem of obtaining maximum education at minimum cost.

Addis Ababa became the capital of Ethiopia in 1889, and now has an estimated population of 400,000. It is one of the ancient nation's newest cities and the name actually means, "new flower."
