BEHIND the STORE FRONTS

With ANGLUS McKellar

Progress report No. 1:

Two years ago a couple of events occurred which changed the lives of a number of people.

One of these events has even made hootenanny fans of such unlikely candidates as Mr. and Mrs. John Peddie (of Pams of Bloomfield).

For it was March 1, 1962, twin daughters, Lee and Lynn, were born to the junior Mr. and Mrs. John (Jack) Peddie, of 679 W. Maple.

The twins are not "identical," Mrs. Peddie tells us, but they do come awfully close to it in appearance.

The senior Peddies never lack for a Saturday evening's entertainment. They look forward to baby sitting that night, when the twins' antics while watching a boomer TV program is along to itself.

A SON, John Peddie III, was born to the junior Peddies a year ago Jan. 28. The young man is already about equal in size to the twins, which is sometimes a secret source of amusement when the parents take them along to church with them on a Sunday morning. A sometimes overheard remark is "look at the triplets!"

Jack Peddie is with the Mead Corp., a packaging firm.

THE OTHER EVENT we refer to has had about equal shattering effect. Only a week later than the Peddie's twins, on March 8, 1962, Mr. & Mrs. William Wigner (the same Bill Wigner of the Prep Shop), greeted twin sons, Andrew and Edward. They, too, are doing fine.

IN CASE you are wondering that strange and huge yellow object you see in the Harold Turner Ford showroom on Woodward Ave. is

English Auto Award Won by Area Resident

Britain's premier automobile engineering award of 1963, the Crompton-Lanchester Medal of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers, has been won by John D. Caplan.

Caplan, 2615 Covington Place, Bloomfield Township, is head of the fuels and lubricants department of General Motors research laboratories in Detroit, and is an authority on problems of air pollution from automobile engines.

His award, made by the Council of the Automobile Division of the Institution, is for a paper on the causes and control of automobile emissions.

CAPLAN WILL receive his medal from the Chairman of the Automobile Division, S. H. Grylls, at the Institution's headquarters, 1 Birdcage Walk, Westminster, Tuesday, March 10.

The Crompton-Lanchester Medal, which is of bronze, is named after two eminent automobile engineers. It is given for the best paper of the year published in the proceedings of the Automobile Division.
