

Strawberries Can Border Perennials in Flower Beds

Spring is coming—strawberries are arriving at our stores to embellish our late winter meals. Many people in our area are using strawberries in their landscape plans as the primary border of their perennial flower beds. The favorite variety seen last year was ries served in a superb, easy manner, place them whole in a dessert dish, topped with sour cream and a sprinkling of brown sugar. This tip should assure "brownie points" for the columnist.

AS WE HAVE been warned by

the everbearing strawberry, Geneva, named for the city of its origin and the site of the New York State Agricultural Station. The berries are of the best quality, being large and attractive with dark red flesh. The juice is sweet. You would plant them 18 inches apart and at least 10 inches from the edge of the grass.

An owner can expect a heavy harvest the middle of June, the last of July, and the plants will continue to bear up to at least October.

BEST RESULTS CAN be achieved in growing strawberries if they are 18 inches apart to allow for a good circulation of air. There will be a greater production if the hill system is used, whereby the runner plants are removed and each plant is thoroughly mulched with sawdust. Frequent feeding with a liquid fertilizer will compensate for the loss of nitrogen due to the use of sawdust. If you wish to enjoy strawber-television, radio and news releases that we are short of our natural water supply, there is little complaint these days when it snows or rains. It takes approximately 5 1/2 inches of snow to result in an inch of water.

this idea away in your head to be used when needed.

AS WE DRIVE over the countryside in the farmland, we are seeing hundreds of elm trees dead because of the Dutch elm disease. The University of Wisconsin has been doing some pioneer research along with some oil companies. Their approach is to shoot the chemical in capsule form into the tree trunk to control the disease. It is then translocated in the tree by the sap. This sounds like a sensible approach rather than wholesale spraying with its fringe damage.

We will all look forward to seeing the Multiflora Double Petunias which will be the big news for annuals this year. They resemble a carnation, with neat bushy plants free from insects and disease. It is the compactness of the growth habit that will attract the gardeners.

MANY OF OUR local garden women attended the recent Home, Furniture and Flower Show at Cobo Hall, Detroit.

The Michigan Horticultural Society sponsored the competitions in arranging under the guidance of Mrs. Bert Wicking of Grosse Pointe. The Gold Cup for the most blue points went to the Hill and Dale Garden Club of Farmington which has many members living in the Twelve Mile Road area.

The Michigan Horticultural Society, according to Mrs. Lloyd Hughes, executive secretary, has as one of its most important programs this year the restoration of the famous Fair Lane Rose Garden, a showplace for many years of Henry and Clara Bryant Ford. Already during the winter months, hundreds of guests have visited the home at Fair Lane which has become a cultural center for the University of Michigan.

Dearborn Branch. As a guide, the planners have as their future goal for the home of the Fords a center for cultural conferences like the famous Dumbarton Oaks of Washington, D.C.

New York has the largest non-white population of any state in the union. According to the 1960 census, residents include 1,400,000 Negroes, 14,400 Indians and 60,000 Chinese and other Orientals.

Formalwear is growing less uniform. The tuxedo getting most attention these days is a type with fancy-but-subtle decoration on lapels and cuffs. Some are more, others less braided. Men's jewelry has the look of elegance and luxury—with even the popular-priced numbers using stones that look like the real thing.
