A DEJECTED Lew Parry watches the action in Seaholm's regional game against Redford St. Mary. The Maples downed Redford easily, 77-57, but the news before the game broke Parry's hope. The coach had been informed that center Jeff Meyer had participated in a pick-up game outside of school and had violated a state high school regulation.

for one length of the pool, but Webster finished stronger to establish a new state mark of 3:56.7.

Ken Heft of Seaholm failed in his bid to defend the state diving title he won last year. He finished second to Chuck Stenback of Ferndale, 346.1-336.85. Maple Steve Zimmer was fifth with 294.4.

SEAHOLM unquestionably used depth to win. They placed four swimmers in the prelims and 11 in the finals, plus two relay teams.

The top-notch swimming from this area was noticeable in several events. The 400-freestyle was a dual meet between two Seaholm and four Kimball tankers.

Groves did admirably well in the tough competition. Coach Jim Gilster took one relay, the 200-free-style, and they won it.

have liked to replay it, but time did not allow."

"Therefore, Redford St. Mary was given the chance to play Detroit Northern for the regional title on the basis that they lost to an ineligible team," he added.

MEYER DID not play against Redford. The tourney director informed Parry of the incident before the contest. A spectator at the church pick-up game had recognized Meyer playing for Seaholm. The news got around fast and Seaholm was disqualified.

New Diamond for Pony Baseball

There still may be snow flurries in the air but they'll soon give way to baseballs. And players in the Pony baseball league in the area will have a new diamond, complete with grass infields, on which to play their contests. Looking over the new park is Pony-Colt commissioner Steve Gromek, former Detroit Tiger, who points out parts of the field to Pony ballplayers (from left) Mike Hilkene, Jeff Weston, Mike Morrow and Ron Wharton. They'll soon be trying to knock down those fences at which Gromek's pointing. Tryouts for Pony baseball is scheduled for April 4 at Groves. Registration is Saturday at the Community House.

Case

It is common knowledge among basketball circles that boys have played in various leagues and have gotten away with it. This doesn't make Jeff's wrong right. But, it leaves room to wonder.

IN ORDER TO be a game, the rule states that it must (1) have previous arrangement (2) advertise (3) have a time and score (4) have spectators (5) follow modified rules (6) be officiated (7) have been in a paper (8) have sufficient players (9) charge admission.

One or more of these conditions constitutes a game. So, Meyer was caught. They had modified rules, kept score and time (two girls), had spectators (the janitor), and had enough players. Is it silly? No, it's sad.

Should a school and team be punished for one boy's wrong doing? Must he ban himself from playing with his friends? Where is the line drawn?

According to the law, if a boy plays varsity tennis at school and decides to play a set with his brother on the week end, he's ineligible. How about a basket in the yard? What about a hardball game on a picnic?

CAN VARSITY athletes join in the fun or must they sit on the side thumbing through the state regulations?

And what about a time element? Can a pick-up game almost a month ago still have bearing and punish a team that has its heart set on a state title? If this had been known, the school could have taken the necessary steps without further embarrassment for all involved.

And, lastly, how did this thing come about anyway? It would seem that an occurence of this sort should provoke further investigation so that future Jeff Meyers don't have to suffer the way he did. Common sense might help.
