

Troy Firm Helps In Gemini Shoot

Vital checkout operations before yesterday's successful launch of the first Gemini-Titan II were performed with hydraulic motorpumps built by Vickers Inc., of Troy.

The Martin Co., builder of the Titan II launch vehicle, has named both the first and second stage Vickers motorpumps as "critical components" for the Gemini-Titan II.

This project is the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) two-man-orbit program to precede the Apollo moon flights.

Despite the claims of any one manufacturer, the most popular models of cars on the road today are those driven by thoughtful, courteous motorists.

Wins Edison Award

Charles M. Drake (right) of 716 Pilgrim, Birmingham, receives the Detroit Edison Co's Alex Dow Award—the company's highest employe honor—from Detroit Edison President Walker L. Ciesler. Drake, who retired in November, 1963, as administrative assistant to Ciesler, was honored for his employe counseling activities which, in the opinion of a large number of supervisors and employes who sought out his advice, far exceeded his assigned responsibilities in the area of employe-management relations.
