Formation of "New Horizons of Oakland County," a new community organization devoted to the creation and operation of a work-training center for the mentally-retarded of Oakland County, was announced Tuesday.

Stanford Wallace, who is serving as an interim president, said the non-profit organization will have two basic objectives:
to provide a vocational training program to that mentally-retarded young adults can be upgraded in their abilities to hold jobs in competitive employment.

He added that in Oakland County approximately 1,700 students are enrolled in special education classes, most of whom could be served by New Horizons upon their separation from school.
"The cost of providing work training and sheltered employment for these mentally handicapped people is about one third the cost of institutional care. To this can be added the positive contributions that a trained and working person can make to himself, family and community."

The alternatives to not having a work-training center is to increase the burden upon already overcrowded and understaffed state institutions or provide the costly facilities and ever increasing operating costs which must be borne by the taxpayers, Wallace continued.

HE POINTED OUT that there are now 130 on the Oakland County waiting list for admission to non-existent beds in state institutions.
Board members have consulted with work center experts from other states and have appointed a finance committee to study methods of financing the program. Sources of funds will include federal grants, possible foundation grants and corporate, individual and civic organization contributions.

"We intend to utilize all available community resources to make this program a success," Wallace said.
Once the program gets further under way, New Horizons will solicit industrial and business firms for contract work, within the framework of regulations set down by the Department of Labor.

"There are many types of work that are considered nuisance jobs by the average manufacturer who often does it as a courtesy to his customers. This is the type of contract work we will seek," he said.
"The retarded in our community have a right to community interest and concern as individuals who need help. The initial response of Oakland County residents and organizations give strong encouragement that we will meet this responsibility for expanded opportunities for the retarded," Wallace said.

Dr. Bruce A. Kresge and James Ludwick of Rochester and Dr. J. C. Sabato of Lake Orion are included on the board.

Social Security Benefits Top County Records

Average social security benefits paid to retired workers in Oakland County reached new high of $91.13 a month, 18 per cent higher than the national average of $76.85.

William E. LaRock, social security district manager in Pontiac, announced. Disabled beneficiaries average $104.07, while the national average is $90.50.

Latest available figures show that 61,826 persons were paid $4,008,465 last December, LaRock said. In 1963 total payments to all beneficiaries in Michigan exceeded $705 million.

In addition to the persons already receiving social security payments, LaRock said, there are many others who are eligible for benefits who have not applied for them, primarily because of lack of knowledge of the law.

He indicated that in some extreme situations an eligible worker with earnings as high as $4,496 a year could receive some payments, and that even higher earnings would not prevent earnings from drawing benefits for months when their earnings were below $100 or their working hours were very low.

LaRock emphasized that social security benefits are paid as a matter of right, since they are paid for by the tax contributions made by employers and workers. He suggested that any Oakland County resident wanting information contact the social security office in the Federal Building in Pontiac, which serves all of Oakland County.
