

Area Home Robbed Of Furs, Funds

A total of $1,650 in cash and articles of clothing were taken from the L. C. Laundry home, 1489 Pierce, early Friday morning.

Laundry told Birmingham police he and his wife found the home had been ransacked when they arrived home shortly after 1:30 a.m.

He reported to Det. Lt. Merlin Holmquist that about $300 in cash, a $1,300 ranch mink coat, $100 in men's jewelry and a $50 top coat had been taken.

Holmquist said entrance to the home was gained by breaking the glass on a rear door.

government, eventually lose some, or all, of their hair. Now it's observed that Secretary of Defense McNamara has shifted the part in his top piece from center toward the left side. ("Maybe those Beatles ought to get into government so their hair won't look so ragged," commented the Sage of Big Beaver.)

I note that W. Averell Harriman has been placed over our former Gov. Mennen Williams as primarily responsible to President Johnson for African affairs. Which recalls that Harriman's mother was originally Mary Averill, a cousin of my own father. I've never met Mr. Harriman who, by the way, can see, substituted an "e" for an "i" in his middle name. The Averills came from New England to Plattsburgh, N. Y., from whence some of them scattered about some, as you also can see. Hope he treats our Soapy well.

who with their husbands are in Detroit as guests of the Detroit Edison and other companies.

Today she is to entertain the Swedish women at a Detroit Athletic Club luncheon prior to escorting them through the Cranbrook Institution grounds, with special attention given the Carl Milles statues, whose counterparts are found in the world-famous Milles Gardens in Stockholm, where the renowned sculptor once was in residence.

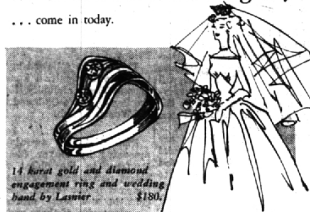

DURING HIS two week ends in Detroit, McGaughey conferred with NAM's Midwest regional manager, William Grier, a Birmingham resident, about participation in the NAM's European Trade Expansion Mission, which the NAM public relations vice president helped to organize and which is expected to include as participants a number of Michigan industrialists.

McGaughey also was conferring with leading local talent booking organizations about speakers for the NAM's annual Congress of the American Industry which will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City, next fall under his direction.

Speakers already booked for the event include Pauline Frederick, United Nations correspondent for NBC, who was a recent speaker at Birmingham Town Hall; William Clark, financial editor of The Chicago Tribune; Joseph Livingston, syndicated columnist of the Philadelphia Bulletin; and Sydney Allen, business page editor of the San Francisco Chronicle.
