

Cranbrook's 60th Year Marked by Festivities

Cranbrook is celebrating its 60th anniversary and ceremonies marking Founders Day on Sunday will combine the traditional as well as innovations.

Much of the day's activities will be in Christ Church Cranbrook — the church was the first major gift of Cranbrook's founders, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Booth.

The day begins with the 7:45 a.m. service when in connection with the regular communion service the Arthur Nevill Kirk Memorial in St. Dunstan's Chapel will be dedicated. Mr. Kirk (1881-1958) was Cranbrook's first silver-smith who made much of the fine silver used by the church.

THE TRADITIONAL service of rededication follows at 10:45 a.m., opening with a procession of directors, vestrymen, members of the advisory board and institutional heads, who march behind the flags of the six institutions.

The sermon will be delivered by the rector, the Rev. Gerald B. O'Grady, Jr. During this service three Founders Medals will be presented by Henry S. Booth, executive director of The Cranbrook Foundation.

Following the annual luncheon and a presentation of carillon music by Ennis Fruhanf, the church will again be the scene of an hour of music by Kenneth Jewell Choral from Detroit from 3 to 4 p.m. This event is open to the public.

IMMEDIATELY afterwards is the annual Founders Day reception in Cranbrook House. This custom was instituted in 1947 by the founders on the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary to honor the Cranbrook Academy of Art, Kingswood School Cranbrook, Cranbrook School and Epokside School Cranbrook.

This year, in addition, the reception will honor Mr. and Mrs. Harry Donald Hoey. Mr. Hoey is retiring as headmaster of Cranbrook School, after 36 years of service with the educational institution.

Tea table hostesses will be wives of Cranbrook School masters — Mrs. Tempin R. Licklider, Mrs. Carl G. Wonnberger, Mrs. Hubert V. Davis, Mrs. Richard Heavrich, Mrs. Walter H. Young, Mrs. Floyd W. Bunt, Mrs. W. Boyce Ricketts and Mrs. Ben M. Snyder III. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Scripps Booth will host the reception.

At 4:30 p.m., brief ceremonies will inaugurate use of a flagpole on the north terrace of Cranbrook House, a gift of the 19 living grandchildren of the founders.

Making its debut that day will be a display of photographs depicting some of the history of Cranbrook's 60 years. It will be included among the six institutions during the celebration year.

Area Inventors Given Patent For Farm Tool

Vincent F. Krahn and Douglas S. Lock, both of Birmingham, were the recipients on March 31 of U.S. patent No. 3,186,091, entitled "Row Crop Forage Harvester."

Forage harvesters sever a crop, always in and feed it to a chopper which cuts it into short uniform lengths. The cut crop is deposited in a wagon ordinarily drawn behind the harvester.

Forage harvesters are commonly towed behind a tractor and basically are of two types. One is adapted for use on grassland crops such as clover and alfalfa, while the other is employed in harvesting crops, such as corn, which have stiff stalks and are planted in more or less uniformly spaced rows.

THE INVENTION of Krahn and Lock pertains to an attachment that may be applied to a grassland harvester, such as that for which Krahn was granted a patent on March 6, 1962, and converts it into a row crop harvester.

The attachment comprises a series of guides, one for each row, which merely are applied to the forward part of the grassland harvester and cooperate with the cutter bar and feed auger of the grassland harvester to guide, sever and move the crop rearwardly for chopping.

Each guide is in the form of a rearwardly and upwardly inclined arch which may be bent from a length of pipe and extends from approximately ground level to above the top of the feed auger of the grassland harvester. A pair of "gathering points" are located at the lower ends of each arch.

IN THE operation of the machine of the invention, the space between the gathering points of each arch is kept generally centered on the crop row, with the top of the arch engaging the stalk and inclining it forwardly somewhat before it is severed by the cutter bar.

The attachment of this invention of Krahn and Lock has no moving parts and thus constitutes a simple and efficient means for satisfactorily converting a grassland forage harvester to one for row crop use.

This patent has been assigned to Ford Motor Co.

S'field Mayor Eyes Circuit Court Post

Southfield Mayor James Clarkson has announced his candidacy for the Oakland County Circuit Court.

Clarkson, who has been a practicing attorney for 12 years, issued the following statement:

"I firmly believe that in addition to having experience in the law, a judge must be experienced in dealing with people and their problems across the broad spectrum of human affairs," he said.

"IT IS ALSO necessary, in an expanding area such as Oakland County, with its booming communities and attendant legal problems, for a judge to be aware of and have a genuine interest in these problems. But, more than that, he must have the experience of dealing with them, so that his understanding of their meaning and complexity is at a high level of competence."

"The matter of zoning, a real concern to many people throughout the county, comes to mind; the entire area of ordinances, charters and their interpretation... all of these are the vital issues with which a judge is faced daily."

"My experience in both the state legislature and as mayor of Southfield, has brought me into constant contact with problems of this nature. It has always been my goal to serve the interests of the people of my district and city and I intend to continue serving the best interests, if I am elected to the circuit court."

Clarkson is a graduate of the Detroit College of Law and a member of the legal firm of Moore, Clarkson and Mills, in Berkley.

HE IS CURRENTLY a member of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors, and acting chairman

B'ham Educator Attending Seminar

Dr. John B. Smith, superintendent, Birmingham Public Schools, is one of a selected group of 120 U.S. educators participating in a "traveling seminar" to examine use of innovations in instructional media and technology.

The seminar has been organized by System Development Corporation under a contract awarded by the U.S. Office of Education. Participants include school superintendents, state department of education officials, and professors from teacher training institutions.

Dr. Smith will participate in the midwest tour which will be led by Dr. Ralph Purdy, professor of Education, Miami University. This tour group will be visiting schools in Ill., Ohio and Michigan and will visit in a seminar after each visitation.

New Training Camps Opened By Boy Scouts

Newly authorized training opportunities in aquatic skills and conservation are being offered Explorers and older Scouts of the Birmingham area, according to an announcement by James R. Bradburn, camping committee chairman of the Detroit Area Boy Scout Council.

An "aquatics specialty" camp, at the Charles Howell Scout reservation, Brighton, is planned for boys 14 and older, who already have the swimming merit badge. This specialty program includes lifesaving, rowing, canoeing, the mile-swim, and Scout Lifeguard. Eight weekly camp periods are scheduled commencing Saturday, June 27, and continuing Saturday, August 29. Participants will sleep in tents and eat in the main dining hall.

THE 'CONSERVATION specialty camp, Metamora, also for boys 14 or older, at the D-Bar-A Scout Ranch, will specialize in conservation of soil, water, woods and wildlife. This involves four 14-day periods June 27-July 11, July 11-25, July 25-August 8 and August 8-22 inclusive. Conservation participants also sleep in tents and will enjoy Reader's stack meals.

Bradburn also announced that the 350-acre Scout canoe base, on the Rifle River, has some openings in July and August for unit camping. He explained that in a week-long camping period nearly five days is spent canoeing.

Hearing Called To Discuss Road Oiling Program

A public hearing will be held on June 1 before Birmingham commissioners on the City's 1964 road oiling program.

For the past few weeks the department of public works has been checking all of the city's unimproved roads to determine which streets should be included in the annual light oil or seal coat program.

DPW Supt. T. C. Brien recommended that the City charge 15 cents per front foot for the light oil and 22 cents per front foot for the double seal coat.

Property owners are assessed 85 per cent of the cost of the program.

A hearing on the confirmation of the assessment roll is scheduled for June 15.
