New Format, Features In Cranbrook’s ‘Opus’

By DOUG LIEBERMAN

Special Writer

With the inauguration of this year’s Foreign Affairs Semester, a study of Germany’s present situation in Africa and the world, the last major activity has taken shape before final realization.

The program is the culmination of a series of college admissions and overseas tours and has been the most prepared for since the beginning of the year.

Also, this week was important in Cranbrook in the history of the ‘Opus’ magazine. On Monday morning, the magazine appeared together with a feature on the editors of the magazine.

The ‘Opus’ has been a part of Cranbrook life for many years now, its existence along an axis of the Cranbrook community. The first publication date was on January 1, 1900, and since then, the magazine has developed a strong sense of identity and purpose.

This year, the magazine decided to again accept the pressure and stress in the present situation and society, and the editors have been preparing for a complete new format in a new edition.

Pick Editors Of Kingswood Publications

By MARY JANE HILDER

Special Writer

Next year’s edition of Kingswood’s literary magazine will be in the hands of its new editors, who will head the staff of the ‘Woodward’ column. The editor of the school newspaper, the ‘Woodward’ column, will be edited by itesca Borden.

The editors and junior editors will spend an exciting and rewarding year in Europe through the Michigan Council for the Arts and Humanities. The following members of the faculty will be the faculty in the respective positions:

JANE LACHERE has won a prize medal for battle in the Festival of the Arts, and will head the “Woodford” staff. In addition, the school’s first and second-grade editors will be the head editors of the ‘Woodford’ column.

The names of the four-quarter representatives are:

- Edna Gagne, who was a member of the Class of 1964.
- The junior class, headed by Elizabeth Anderson, will be represented by the ‘Woodford’ column.
- The senior class, headed by Paul Kibbey, will be represented by the ‘Woodford’ column.
- The freshman class, headed by Elizabeth Anderson, will be represented by the ‘Woodford’ column.

This year’s representatives to the Student Council were elected early in the year, and their roles have been started.
