TEEN-AGE JAZZ BAND SWINGS INTO ANOTHER NUMBER AT UNITARIAN CHURCH. Rev. Robert Marshall (right) arranged musical worship service.

Jazz Band Punctuates B'ham Church Service

An effective counterpart to a recent worship service at the Birmingham Unitarian Church was the addition of a nine-piece jazz band.

A group of local teenagers, under the direction of Fred Trost of Birmingham, punctuated the traditional order of service with renditions of "Summertime," "It Ain't Necessarily So" and "Basin Street Blues."

REV. ROBERT Marshall arranged for the group's participation in the service and response was so enthusiastic that the group was encouraged to play more.

The particular service was one of two informal Sunday morning programs held in June. The second service was conducted by Day Krolik, Jr., an active member of the church, who spoke on "Reason Isn't Everything."

The two programs marked the end of the official church year until September, although Dave Breck and Stanley Connelly are preparing a special program for Sunday evening, July 19, and Sunday evening, August 16.

Rev. Marshall will talk about "Man's Fate and Man's Hope." In addition, an ice cream social under the chairmanship of Mrs. Wilford Payne has been scheduled for August 2.

AMONG THE jazz band members were Sue Stinson, Karen Nichols, Charlie Wessels, Charlie Schwartzberg, Phil Gaudis, Dave Woolfenden, Steve Lyman, Gary Fischer and Tim Cowen.
