

Auto Crash Kills W. B'field Woman

A 52-year-old West Bloomfield Township woman died Saturday afternoon of injuries suffered in an auto accident at 8:40 p.m. in front of the Savoy Motel, 120 S. Telegraph, Waterford Township.

The victim, Mrs. Charles R. Lewis, was riding in an auto driven by her husband, 61, who is in satisfactory condition at the Pontiac General Hospital with a broken arm and leg and facial cuts.

THE LEWIS HOME is at 7295 S. Tratham Court.

Lewis told police he was driving south on Telegraph when another car forced his car off the road into a telephone pole.

Police said the Lewis' car traveled 96 feet with its right wheels over the curb before coming to a stop against the utility pole.

3 Area Women to Serve At UF 'Health-O-Rama'

Mrs. E. O. Bodkin, of Grose Pointe, chairman of the United Foundation "Health-O-Rama" to be presented on the main terrace of J. L. Hudson's Northland Center Aug. 31-Sept. 5, has named five co-chairmen to work with her in staging the event.

From Birmingham are Mrs. John Sterling, 871 N. Glenhurst Dr., hostesses; and Mrs. Clyde C. Bennett Jr., 1274 Westwood, program and entertainment.

Agency exhibits, where demonstrations and tests will be conducted, will be housed in a tent on the terrace. Other agencies will present programs or an outdoor platform.

THE EXHIBITION, free to the public, is being presented by Women for the United Foundation (WUF), a year-round organization of past and present Torch Drive volunteers headed by Mrs. Worth Kramer, 4855 Ardmore, Bloomfield Hills, as chairman.

Arrangements for space within the tent have been made by 35 Torch Drive agencies.

They are Children's Hospital, Salvation Army, Council on Alcoholism, Rehabilitation Institute, Detroit Orthopaedic Clinic, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, Cystic Fibrosis, Detroit Cerebral Palsy Center, Michigan Humane Society, Catholic Charities, Boys Club of Detroit, Red Cross, Detroit Dental Aid, Big Brothers of Oakland County, Detroit Federation of Settlements.

Also, Children's Leukemia Foundation, Detroit Society for Prevention of Blindness, Leader Dogs, Recording for the Blind, Multiple Sclerosis, Michigan Cancer Foundation, Society for Mental Health, Detroit League for the Handicapped, Shifman Clinic, Michigan Heart Association, YMCA, Michigan Kidney Disease Foundation, YWCA, St. Francis Epilepsy and Michigan Epilepsy Association.

PRESENTING programs on the outdoor platform will be the American Red Cross, Big Brothers, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, International Institute, Catholic Charities, and others of the 204 agencies for which the Torch Drive provides funds.

The exhibits will be open during store hours, Mrs. Bodkin said. "Everything is free to the public," she added.

"This includes many of the tests given by various health agencies. The purpose of the 'Health-O-Rama' is to dramatize the work being done by Torch Drive agencies toward better health within the community, and to present some of the more spectacular aspects of agency recreational services."

Role

ance Program initiated by the courts and handled by many of the same clergymen now involved with this program.

"We found there was much to be gained in a religious-social association with the young. They not only gained religious values, but they dealt with people whom they formerly thought were 'square.'"

"We asked the help of host families who took the responsibility of taking the youngster to church or synagogue and other social functions."

"Again in this new venture, we are not interested in superseding, but supplementing, the available counseling services."

RABBI ROSENBAUM said that many people felt, wrongly, that they needed "expert wisdom" in solving their problems.

"I believe that most divorces can be prevented if the couple would just come to the minister and talk about it."

"If we can get these people early enough, we have the chance to make them look at themselves and each other without pride."

The rabbi considered the attitude of married people to each other the key to a successful marriage.

"IF WE CAN get them to have a considerate and respectful attitude towards their mate, then other problems can be solved."

These "other problems" that sometimes wreck a marriage, according to the rabbi, include:

- immaturity;
- growing apart of a couple;
- sexual adjustments;
- money problems;
- irrational behavior, such as drunkenness; or
- deep-seated emotional problems.

"If we can get couples to come to us, then they already have an unspoken will to remain together."

ALTHOUGH THE premarital counseling service has not been formalized, the rabbi gave his views on what should be included.

"My first prescription would be for patience."

He also would like to teach couples the understanding of man-woman relationships, of their responsibility to their own growth, and also the general side of marriage, such as running a household.

Adjustment is the key word of Rabbi Rosenbaum's teaching to engaged couples.

"To many young people, adjustment is a meaningless word."

"They are living in a romantic world and do not realize that there are sexual, emotional and association adjustments that must be made for an enduring marriage."

THE RABBI also felt that the couple should be supplied with other resources should they seek a specific type of counseling.

The rabbi said he would never discourage a couple from marrying.

"I have asked myself, what does this boy see in that silly girl?"

"He sees the girl for herself, is the answer. This marriage could or may not be a success, but I should do my best to help."

The rabbi said the clergy might also be trained in group therapy for premaritals, although he has always counseled on an individual basis.

"ALTHOUGH A difficult technique to master, group therapy is a timesaver and is good, as it gives an awareness that other people also have problems."

An indirect beneficiary of the new program might be the clergyman himself, as many people feel that religious men live in a world by themselves.

"I know many people who are amazed with the knowledge of the clergyman, who are humble about their intelligence."

"They do not always realize that the clergy comes in contact with the everyday problems in life, every day."

"It is this experience that we hope to draw from."
