

Speeding at 115 Yields Fine, Jail

A 20-year-old Detroit youth, Lloyd D. Haver, accused of driving 115 miles per hour on Telegraph Road without headlights, was sentenced to 30 days in the Oakland County Jail and fined $100 plus $20 court costs Monday.

The 11 mile chase started at 2:45 a.m. with Bloomfield Township police. Lt. Martin McLaughlin said he saw Haver run a red light at W. Quarten and Telegraph.

Haver ran four roadblocks set up by six police departments and red lights on Telegraph at 15 Mile, 10 Mile and 9 Mile roads before a roadblock of two police cars and a semitruck across 7 Mile at Telegraph to halt the fleeing car, according to McLaughlin. Haver's car slid to a stop, but McLaughlin's went into a spin and landed on the median.

THE YOUTH switched off his headlights at 8 Mile, said McLaughlin, and at no time did he drive less than 100 miles per hour through the red lights. McLaughlin reported, at some points, Haver reached 115 miles per hour.

Haver pleaded guilty to reckless driving before Justice of the Peace Mrs. Alice L. Gilbert, Bloomfield Township.

He said he ran because he had been drinking and had some beer in the back seat of the car.

GOP Candidate Offers Information, Services

A free cup of coffee and free baby-sitting service is the rule of the day at the new Hampton for State Representative headquarters, Saturday morning, amid the furor of an energetic and enthusiastic group of Hampton supporters, the official headquarters opened in downtown Birmingham.

William F. Hampton, a Republican candidate for state representative, was on hand to be part of the festivities including installing a sign and moving in furniture.

The headquarters, located on Woodward just south of the Birmingham Theatre, will be the hub of a spirited political campaign, Hampton said.

HAMPTON SAID the purpose is to offer the public a place to meet with him and discuss the political issues confronting the State of Michigan.

This, he emphasized, is in accord with his belief that the state representative who is nominated on Sept. 1, has a duty to keep an open-door policy to the people in his district.

The Hampton headquarters, he said, is novel in that it will provide mothers with free baby-sitting service while they shop. He extended an invitation to anyone to stop by the headquarters for a free cup of coffee.

Following the official opening of the headquarters Saturday morning, Hampton spoke at a garden party given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Downs of Beverly Hills. Guests included the members of the Beverly Hills-Franklin Republican Women's Club.

In Hampton's address, he stressed a need for a revision of the Michigan business tax structure.

HAMPTON STATED, "Our present business tax structure on the surface appears to provide adequate revenue for the state. However, this structure is inequitable and discourages new businesses from coming into Michigan.

"It is most important that we become more competitive with other states in the Union to induce more new industry to come into our state, thereby creating new jobs and a more sound and stable economic trend in Michigan. I feel that we must make industrialists in other states aware that Michigan regards industry as its bread and butter and not as an object of exploitation by a greedy government.

"A revision of our present business tax structure will certainly help to solve this problem and encourage industrial expansion in our state so that we may then turn to our more pressing human needs."

zen's Library Committee of Bloomfield Township.

Mrs. Betty Abbott, Mrs. Mary King, Mrs. Lucile Roehm and John Rumsey are unopposed.

THREE ARE three slates in West Bloomfield but the Republican Party is the only one with a substantial number of candidates.

Incumbent board trustees Emmet DeConick, 61, and John F. Warren, 54, are being challenged by Arthur A. Romer, 43, an attorney, for the two seats at stake.

Supervisor John C. Rehard, 60, who has served continuously since 1959; Clerk Dorothy M. Chamberlain, 46; and Treasurer Lillian S. Warner, 47, are unopposed in the Republican primary.

The Democratic Party, on the ballot for the first time, at least in recent years, boasts three candidates running unopposed for three offices. They are John Deberry, 41, for supervisor; and John A. Marbie, 30, and John V. Nahabedian, 54, for trustee.

THE CITIZENS Party, which once was the only party in West Bloomfield, has only two candidates this year, both for the library board. They are Mrs. Carol H. Sader, 29, and Glenn E. Johnson, 41, both incumbents.

In the general election, Mrs. Sader will be opposed by Mrs. Helene H. Freund, 42, who is also running for a six-year term on the Republican ticket.

No primary has been scheduled in Southfield Township this year since there was no announced opposition.

Parley Shows Conservatives In Mainstream of Activities

By MARYLYN DUPREE
Staff Writer

All this talk about the MAINSTREAM. What is it; where is it; who is in it? And Republican mainstream at that?

Mrs. Lillian Chambers from the 14th Congressional District and one of the eight Michigan delegates to the Republican National Convention who held out for Goldwater on the first ballot, gave her thoughts about the "mainstream" Tuesday night at the Birmingham YMCA.

But before Mrs. Chambers got her chance to talk, several candidates in the primary were introduced to the audience of about 80 enthusiastic conservatives.

Robert L. Templin, a candidate for prosecuting attorney in Oakland County, said: "I am a strong Republican, and we need to work as a strong organization."

Donald R. Freeman expressed his thoughts on the office of judge of the Court of Appeals. He said there is a need for strong-willed judges. "I am against big government but am for big rights of individuals."

ANOTHER CANDIDATE for judge of the Court of Appeals, Jack Hanna, believes: "You must practice law before you can sit on any bench." Hanna is a general practitioner.

Still another candidate for the same office, Donald Sargent, presented his views on the racial problems today, saying: "The racial problems are most unreasonable and senseless, and the civil rights laws are wrong in principle and unlawful."

Reno Varani, candidate for the state senate from the 16th district, said, "I want to go to Lansing to undo laws rather than make laws. Most Americans, in fact about 75 per cent of them, are really conservatives, but they don't know it."

Mrs. Chambers was then given her turn to speak. She opened by saying, "I am a Conservative Republican. I make no apologies; I am proud of it. And since California I am in the mainstream of Republican thinking; it's a comfortable feeling, but it carries a great responsibility with it."

SHE CONTINUED by telling about some of the convention activities not generally made public. She said about 91 people left for the plane for California—three or four delegates, Gov. Romney and several of his staff people.

Mrs. Chambers and her alternate headed for the plane on the plane and talked over an improvised bridge table of briefcases for the duration of the night-10 hours.

Upon arriving in San Francisco, the Goldwater supporters met the plane, and "right from the first, we felt right at home," said Mrs. Chambers.

"And of course we had caucused at the hotel, but they all turned out the same. Then Monday evening after the test ballot, we knew the ballgame was over. We felt like we had really done it."

She went on to say, "Then after all the platform fights and amendment arguments, it made no difference about resolutions. If anyone had introduced a resolution hoping we'd have a nice day tomorrow, they'd have voted it down."

ENTHUSIASM RAN high for Barry Goldwater when it was time for nominating. "Our opponents had been beaten on everything. Those delegates came to do a job; they were elected to go and vote for Barry Goldwater, and that they did," Mrs. Chambers added.

Gov. Romney said he would resign the delegates when they became meaningful, and Mrs. Chambers said he would be meaningful on the first ballot for the convention would never see a second ballot.

NOW MRS. CHAMBERS, along with other conservatives, feels she has "a grasp on the future." After the convention, though, it was time to go home and work.

The crowning glory for Mrs. Chambers was when Mr. and Mrs. Goldwater dropped the red, white and blue balloons, and everybody stood and cheered. Then it came Goldwater's speech, which Mrs. Chambers feels will go down in history as one of the greatest.

She said there was a hush over the entire group when Goldwater said he wanted "to keep marauders off the streets, to make the streets safe again." And still another calm when he said, "extremism in defense of liberty is no vice."

MRS. CHAMBERS said about the liberals complaining of a rigged convention. "Yes it was a rigged convention; there were 1,300 people doing their jobs."

She said she received 187 telegrams; three said to vote for Scranton, the others Goldwater.

ments plus returns on their own skill or labor.

"The third category of many small business and/or services cannot generate sufficient increases in volume to pay the additional parking lot assessments," Rothman said.

"Hence, the property owner must absorb these multiple parking lot assessments and this, in effect, is why so many pieces of property on Woodward, Maple and other prime business areas look shabby, run down and have not been modernized.

"THIS THIRD category is by far the largest, and most of the owners of property and their tenants are seriously harmed by multiple assessments," Rothman said.

No date of hearing on the spreading of the assessment roll has been set by the commissioners.

City Manager L. R. Gare said the hearing would not be scheduled until after the completion of a traffic survey of the downtown area.

Denton Hassell

Here's the practical action plan recommended by Denton Hassell on the need for a better Mental Health program in Michigan . . .

"A great deal more has to be done to aid the emotionally disturbed adult and child. As a start, it would work for the establishment of out-patient clinics at state hospitals, such as Lapeer and Plymouth, so that a certain amount of preliminary treatment could be given pending admittance on a permanent basis."
