By HUGH E. SARLES
Director of Admissions, WSU

Wayne State University is a cosmopolitan, urban university located in the cultural center of metropolitan Detroit, an ideal location to aid the university in its primary function-cultivating the creative intellect and aiding the growth and development of the students and community which it serves.

In addition to providing a broad basic program of general education to prepare students for participation as intelligent citizens in the world of tomorrow, outstanding leadership is also provided to prepare students at both the graduate and undergraduate level for professional careers in medicine, pharmacy, law, teaching, engineering, business administration, social work and nursing.

THIS UNIVERSITY offers many advantages to the serious student who seeks the best possible education. Although Wayne is a state university, it has students and faculty drawn from over 40 states and 60 foreign countries providing a national and international campus atmosphere.

Wayne's own superior library facilities and those available at the main branch library of the City of Detroit assure students the finest selection of research and resource materials available.

Wayne is a large university, but because of its concern for the individual student, the many small classes and seminars, a complete counseling program, and wide range of student activities, no one ever feels lost in the crowd.

AS A PROSPECTIVE college student, it is hoped you will give careful consideration to the selection of the most appropriate institution for furthering your educational objectives and ambitions. If Wayne becomes your choice, questions may arise as you seek to implement this important decision. The Admissions Office counselors welcome the opportunity to discuss your plans with you and answer questions concerning your educational future.

Adequate preparation and background is necessary to be assured of admission to the University. The determination of your readiness to undertake study at Wayne is vitally important to you to insure successful achievement.

The standards are necessarily high to maintain a university from which you would be proud to have your degree and to maintain approval by the various appropriate accrediting agencies.
