More Families Move to Farms In Thumb Area

A recent survey showed that family farm transfers are about twice as prevalent in the Thumb area in south central Michigan.

Studies conducted by USDA agricultural economists working out of Michigan State University show that nearly a third of the land sales and rentals in the Thumb during the last four years were made between relatives.

The researcher explains that related families tend to concentrate in an area, and it is often necessary to buy or rent from relatives in order to get land close-by.

THE ECONOMISTS—Melvin L. Case, Myron E. Wirth and George D. Irwin—also point out that intra-family transfers are often made under more favorable conditions than the open market.

Purchases usually require lower down payments.

Govt. Agency Defines Role of Prosecutor

"Never before in Oakland County history has it been so necessary for voters and candidates, too, to take a new look at the office of prosecuting attorney," said Robert L. Templin, Republican seeking nomination to that office.

"This man—the prosecutor—is the law enforcement officer of what is now the most populous county in the State of Michigan, outside of Wayne," said Templin.

"And because it is part of the metropolitan area, Oakland as a whole is faced with the vast array of criminal problems which just naturally seem to grow with a growing population."

Templin said in his statement of aims and goals, "It is the prosecutor's job to protect as best he can the law-abiding citizens from the law-breakers and to vigorously prosecute those who violate our criminal law. He must provide the protection and prosecution in the most efficient possible manner."

Daughters of Charity Get Change of Habit

The Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul, the largest community in the Catholic Church, has announced a change of Habit.

This is being done in compliance with the recommendations of the Sacred Congregation of Religious which for some years has been urging that Religious Orders of women simplify their Habits in keeping with the needs of their present world and with the general trend of adaptation to modern times.

To the community of the Daughters of Charity with its more than 45,000 members spread over five continents, 68 countries and 52 provinces, the change posed many and varied problems.

From the Generalate in Paris, the Superior General sent word to all of the Provincials throughout the world, inviting them to submit suggestions and models for a new Habit. Long and careful studies were made, and international consultations held, before a decision could be reached that would be suitable and satisfactory to all.

The present Habit of blue and white, worn for some three centuries, is modeled after that of the Normandy peasant woman of the 17th century. It is easily distinguished from all other religious Habits by the large, white, stiffly starched headpiece, called a "cornette."

The American Sisters of Charity, founded by Blessed Elizabeth Ann Seton in 1809, wore the black Habit and bonnet of their founders until 1880 when they became affiliated with the French Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul and adopted the cornette and blue Habit.

The many and varied activities in which the Daughters of Charity engage were taken into consideration in designing the new Habit. Their work includes practically everything that active Orders of women do: hospitals, both general and special; schools from kindergarten through college; homes for dependent children and for the aged; home nursing; catechetical, social welfare, care and counseling of unwed mothers; mobile dispensaries, hostels, day camps, and youth centers.

Much of the Sisters' work, though institution-based, is done outside the institution where they bring their services in both urban and rural settings to those who need them. Because of this, the new Habit must be trim, simple and suitable for all-weather service.

"THIS NECESSITATED a radical change. The only semblance of the former Habit that has been retained are the colors, blue and white, indicating their special affinity to Mary Immaculate. Other than the colors, the new Habit will be completely different from the former one.

The new Habit is a one-piece, box pleated, tailored dress, six inches from the floor. The headpiece is white, covered by a short, blue collar, reaching below the shoulders.

Pictures of the new Habit were sent to all of the houses of the Eastern province by Sister Eleanor, Provincial, with the announcement that the change was scheduled for Sept. 20.

Detroit's Providence Hospital and Farmington's Sarah Fisher Home and Marillac Apartments are all operated by the Daughters of Charity.

Kindergarten PTA Conferences Set In September

Parent-teacher conferences for all kindergarten children will be held during the month of September.

Educators and parents throughout the country have recognized the importance of preschool experiences and the initial introduction of the child to his school. These conferences provide both the parents and the teacher with the opportunity to discuss what both may do to help make the child's kindergarten experiences meaningful and enjoyable.

There will be no scheduled kindergarten classes during the conference days. Each parent will have about thirty minutes with the teacher.

The following is a schedule of classes during the conference period: on Thursday, Sept. 17, one-half of the kindergartners will attend classes on Friday, Sept. 18, one-half will attend classes; Sept. 21 through 25, all children will attend one and one-half hour classes; on Sept. 28, all children will resume full sessions.

All elementary school principals have contacted kindergarten parents by letter, noting the appointment time and details about conference preparation. Further information may be obtained by contacting the respective school principal.

B'ham Professor Named Advisor

Dr. Charles N. LeBeaux, 470 S. Cranbrook Road, Birmingham, professor at Wayne State University, has been appointed to the program advisory committee of The Great Lakes Consumer Conference to be held Monday, Sept. 21 at Detroit's Cobo Hall.

Announcement of the appointment was made by Mrs. Esther Peterson, special assistant to the President for Consumer Affairs, and Harry J. Woodman, president of the Michigan Credit Union League, and chairman of the Conference.

THE GREAT LAKES Consumer Conference, sponsored jointly by President Johnson's Committee on Consumer Interests, and the Michigan Credit Union League, will provide a forum in which consumers, business representatives and social service agencies will explore consumer problems and their solutions. Six states are included in the Conference: Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Northern Illinois and Michigan.

The Detroit conference, the third in the nation, follows those held in St. Louis, Mo., and Salt Lake City, Utah, earlier this year. The Consumer Conference is open to the public.
