More than 100,000 voters — or one-third of the registered voters in Oakland County — turned out to nominate candidates for seven county posts Tuesday.

"This figure can be compared to the 59,000 who voted at the last primary election in the county two years ago," said David R. Calhoun, county clerk.

County totals were incomplete with 26 precincts yet to report as of noon Wednesday. Ten of the precincts were within Avon Township, the rest distributed through out White Lake, West Bloomfield and Royal Oak townships.

County voters nominated six circuit court candidates for the Nov. 3 election to fill the three posts to expire through Dec. 31, 1965.

TOP VOTE-GETTERS were incumbent Arthur E. Moore, 38,487; incumbent Philip Pratt, 25,182; incumbent James S. Thorburn, 20,367; Allen C. Ingle, 15,902; John E. McGrath, 15,286; and James Clarkson, 14,743.

Not nominated was Gordon S. Smith, who polled 13,268 votes.

Incumbent David R. Calhoun won the Republican nomination for the combined posts of county clerk-register of deeds from Daniel T. Barry by a vote of 28,407 to 19,361. He will oppose the Democratic nominee, John D. Murphy, winner over Doris M. Beck, 15,768 to 13,410.

His 23,137 tally compared to 15,072 votes accumulated by William E. Lang, and the 13,811 votes of Jerome K. Barry, both senior assistant prosecutors.

Resident Tells Timely Tale in Suburbia Today

A charming political story is the local contribution made by Sally Ruff of Bloomfield Hills to the September issue of SUBURBIA TODAY which will be in the Sept. 10 Birmingham Eccentric.

After designing a cover on the woes of party giving, artist Whitney Darrow, Jr., decided to expand the fruits of his own experience into an essay, too.

For instance—should you plan to have more people than chairs, or more chairs than people at your next party? It's worth thinking about, and Darrow thinks this out and how not to throw a party in September issue of SUBURBIA TODAY.

IT'S FRUSTRATING, all right, to spend years conjugating French verbs (or any verbs, for that matter) and end up being able to say nothing more than "comment allez-vous?"

This month, Emily Kimbrough, the famous author of "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," "Pleasure By The Roadside," etc., and the forthcoming book about Greece, "Forever Old, Forever New," asks "Why Can't Our Children Get a Real Second Language?"

Then she answers the question with news of methods now being tried in our public schools, where the child is "brought up" in a second language from his first year in school through his high school graduation.

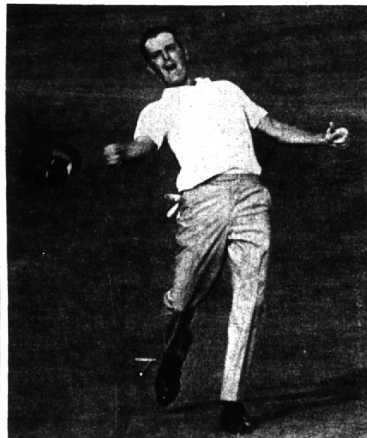

Labor Day Means Early Deadlines For Next Issue

Because of the Labor Day holiday, all deadlines are advanced for the Sept. 10 issue of The Birmingham Eccentric.

All news and advertising contributors are asked to submit their copy to our offices at the earliest possible moment, to avoid disappointment. Early deadlines are in effect for all departments, including classified and display advertising.

During the Detroit newspaper strike, The Eccentric is publishing larger-than-normal issues. Thus, it is also essential that copy continue to be submitted as early as possible each week.

The Eccentric respectfully requests the cooperation of all news and advertising contributors.

Nichols Crowned World Open King

Four days of red-hot golf came to a close Sunday when Bobby Nichols, last placed on the Oakland Hills course, dropped a final 18-inch putt to give him a one-stroke victory over threatening Arnold Palmer in the first Carling World Open.

As more than 12,000 people rimmed the 18th green, Nichols, cool under pressure, clinched a course record total of 278 by adding a final round score of 72 to previous rounds of 72-66-68.

The rich classic netted PGA champ Nichols $35,000, almost doubling his earnings for the year to $72,087. The 28-year-old golfer was only one of two players to bust par over the 72 holes. Runner-up Palmer had a 279, one stroke below the course standard.

PALMER, CHEERED in by his many followers, almost pulled it out when he birdied the 18th hole after making "the best shot I've ever made when it meant something."

He whacked a six-iron shot out of the rough 160 yards to the green. The ball dangerously cleared the front left fair and bounced against the pin, stopping seven feet away.

The 34-year-old veteran earned the remaining putt for a birdie to finish one stroke behind Nichols, who refused to sway under the imposing challenge.

Palmer came in with rounds of 70-71-67-71—279 to beat the old 72-hole mark of 281. He lost precious strokes in the second round Friday when he triple-bogied the par-4 15th, hitting the water and sand trap in successive shots.

After fashioning a three-under-par 67 Saturday, Palmer bogied 8 and 9 to go out even par. Then he mastered the par-5 12th with an eagle-3 to counter-balance two back nine bogies before getting his bird on the final hole—a typical Palmer challenge.

GARY PLAYER also made a definite bid for the crown as did aging Ben Hogan. Player wound up at 281 in third place for $8,500, while Hogan split fourth place honors with Californian Pete Brown.

Player, the "Black Knight" of South Africa, stepped into contention with a fine third round of 67, three under par. He was all even with Palmer through nine holes on Sunday and then caught Arnie again on 15 with a birdie-three.

He hit a beautiful 4-wood shot from the rough to the green on 18 but then three-putted to leave himself two strokes behind Arnie.

Hogan, playing as steady as any of the competitors, had scores of 72-70-72-68—282, just one shot off the previous 72-hole record. His final 18-hole score was just one shy of the course mark he set in the U.S. Open 15 years ago.

But, despite the serious challenges, Nichols remained confident, a feeling he attributed to his PGA win earlier in the year.

HE STARTED to falter on the 8th through the 10th holes, bogeying all three, but canned a 10-foot putt on 10 that got him back to the right track.

He birdied 12 after Palmer had eagled it to regain the lead and then refused to relinquish it, even when Arnie magnificently birdied the final hole.

On 18, with all of golfom watching, he placed his tee shot in the middle of the fairway, hit the far right side of the green with his four-iron and then lagged the ball to within 18 inches for this winning par.

"I just tried to hit the green on 18, but the ball rolled to the right of the hump instead of the left as I hoped it would," Nichols said.

Putting was a major factor in the champ's game. He three-putted just twice, something that most of the pros did much more frequently on Oakland Hills' greens.

Teens to March for Funds In Fight Against Diseases

By DAVE PHILPO
A veritable army of teen-agers will assemble at the Birmingham-Bloomfield area from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 13, in search of donations for the fight against crippling diseases in children.

Almost 400 youngsters — all from this area — will join about 12,000 others in the Detroit metropolitan area in the Teen March for ALSAC, founded by Danny Thomas for the support and maintenance of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

Chairman of the teen march in Birmingham and Bloomfield is Gregory Fraunhofer, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. V. Roy Campian.

COCHAIRMAN of Bloomfield is Adriane Andrae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard R. Andrae of Bloomfield Hills, and chairman of Birmingham is David Dean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Dean, Birmingham.

The teen-agers participating in the 1964 march are hopeful of making this area outstanding and among the top contributors throughout the Greater Detroit area and the nation.

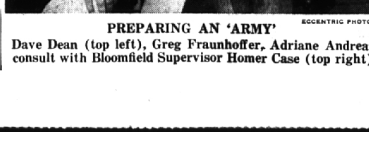

ALSAC — American Lebanese Syrian Associated Charities—has 300 chapters in the United States and is a nonprofit organization pledged to provide a minimum of $1 million a year to maintain and support the children's hospital.

VERY SOON after the organization was formed it became evident that others wanted to participate in this project and ALSAC expanded to adding leukemia-stricken American children, regardless of race, creed or nationality.

ALSAC is also pledged to keep expenses below 10 per cent of all contributions received. In 1963 ALSAC raised $1,180,348.45 throughout the nation with total expenses of only 8.6 per cent of funds donated.

Scientifically, St. Jude is unique. Here, for the first time, pediatricians and biologists scientists combine their talents in a concentrated campaign to conquer the medical problems of childhood.
