Lack of Funds Hinders State In Mental Health Treatment

BY ELMER E. WHITE
Special Writer

One of Michigan's most pressing problems, the mental health picture, poses some statistics well worth pondering.

Approximately one-sixth of Michigan's general fund is spent for direct care and treatment of mentally ill and retarded patients. In the current fiscal year this will amount to more than $100 million.

Additional funds will be spent this year for new and expanded mental health facilities, but experts in the field say much more could and should be done.

INDIRECT COSTS of mental illness are also great when computed in terms of work absenteeism, welfare costs due to homes broken by this problem, and legal costs arising from behavioral irregularities.

Perhaps even more staggering are the personal figures involved in records of mental and emotional illness.

The Michigan Society for Mental Health estimates 180,000 school-age children are in need of psychological attention, while only about 30,000 are actually receiving such help.

THERE ARE ABOUT 800,000 persons all told in Michigan with some form of mental illness, but only 57,000 of these are in state institutions, according to Society officials.

Some relief for the imbalance between need and existing care is being provided through the relatively new community mental health facilities, but the Society says there is considerable room for improvement.

Another major contribution to world progress is being made by Michigan's colleges and universities, which are involved in assisting educational institutions in many nations and in training students from all over the world on state campuses.

SOME INDICATION of the continuing growth of tourist interest in Michigan is evidenced in the requests for maps and information reaching state officials.

Recent figures indicated slightly over 17,000 persons in the state are being served in community psychiatric out-patient clinics. Each is hard pressed to meet the demands for service at this time.

The chief source of relief for this problem lie, according to Society spokesmen, in future community action and greatly expanded and improved programs for children needing institutional care.

MICHIGAN'S CONTRIBUTIONS to world progress, primarily through industry and education, will be in the spotlight next May when the 12th annual Michigan Week is observed.

More than one billion dollars in industrial and agricultural products are being exported from Michigan annually, one of the factors considered in deciding on the theme, "Michigan: Dynamic in World Progress" for the May 16-22 event.

Woodward C. Smith, vice president of Central Michigan University who has served in various capacities for several previous Michigan Weeks, heads the 1965 promotion.

Continuing the tradition, the Governor formally announced the theme for 1965. Smith and his major planning committee were busy with Michigan Week activity for some time before this, however.

Research by the Greater Michigan Foundation, the sponsoring agency, shows about 1,000 Michigan industries and businesses are engaged in foreign trade and investment.

This volume of activity means that eight out of 10 manufacturing workers in the state are employed by companies involved in foreign trade.
